Teaching Secondary and Middle School

Mathematics Daniel J. Brahier, 2020-04-01 Teaching Secondary and Middle School Mathematics combines the latest developments in research technology and standards with a vibrant writing style to help teachers prepare for the excitement and challenges of teaching secondary and middle school mathematics. The book explores the mathematics teaching profession by examining the processes of planning teaching and assessing student progress through practical examples and recommendations. Beginning with an examination of what it means to teach and learn mathematics, the reader is led through the essential components of teaching, concluding with an examination of how teachers continue with professional development throughout their careers. Hundreds of citations are used to support the ideas presented in the text, and specific websites and other resources are presented for future study by the reader. Classroom scenarios are presented to engage the reader in thinking through specific challenges that are common in mathematics classrooms. The sixth edition has been updated and expanded with particular emphasis on the latest technology resources and standards. The reader is introduced to the ways that students think and how to best meet their needs through planning that involves attention to differentiation as well as how to manage a classroom for success. Features include: The entire text has been reorganized so that assessment takes a more central role in planning and teaching. Unit 3 of 5 now addresses the use of summative and formative assessments to inform classroom teaching practices. A new feature, Links and Resources, has been added to each of the 13 chapters. While the book includes a substantial listing of citations and resources after the chapters, five strongly recommended and practical resources are spotlighted at the end of each chapter as an easy reference to some of the most important materials on the topic. Approximately 150 new citations have either replaced or been added to the text to reflect the latest in research materials and resources that support the teaching of mathematics. A Quick Reference Guide has been added to the front of the book to assist the reader in identifying the most useful chapter features by topic. A significant revision to Chapter 13 now includes discussions of common teaching assessments used for field experiences and licensure as well as a discussion of practical suggestions for success in methods and student teaching experiences. Chapter 9 on the practical use of classroom technology has been revised to reflect the latest tools available to classroom teachers, including apps that can be run on handheld personal devices. King, Dileni Gunewardena, 2022-11-25 The role of cognitive and socioemotional skills alongside education in determining people's success in the labour market has been the topic of a growing body of research but previous studies have mostly missed middle income countries and the developing world because measures of those skills and data on employment and earnings on large enough samples of adults have typically not been available Using comparable survey data on these schooling skills and labour market outcomes from 13 developing and emerging economies worldwide this book revisits human capital and gender inequality models It presents new estimates of the returns to different levels of schooling as well as cognitive and socioemotional skills for women and men It examines whether those returns are due to levels of human capital or to structural bias in labour markets and how these two factors work across the earnings spectrum The book examines the existence of glass ceilings and sticky floors for women using this expanded measure of human capital Further by analyzing a group of countries of wide ranging levels of economic development and socio political contexts the book reveals patterns and insights into how context mediates the relationship between skills and gender gaps in labour market outcomes This book will be of interest to scholars of human capital and gender inequality in the labour market and development economics as well as gender and development policy makers
