

Unit One – Raising the Level of Personal Narrative Writing and Edging Toward Memoir*September*

In our increasingly busy and high-stakes teaching lives, sometimes we may be tempted to skip a unit like this, thinking that students have experienced this sort of writing in prior years. Yet, it is essential to lay the ground work that will impact other forms of writing and gives our students very quick success that fosters a productive, focused, and engaging workshop environment for the entire year. You may even wonder if writing from a personal perspective even matters. We cannot say more certainly; yes it does.

First, the skill of narrative writing is essential for our adolescents for the rest of their lives. It informs the way they not only write and read stories, but is a key ingredient in all non-narrative forms including persuasive essays, informational reports, and journalism. Quite frankly, it will impact all areas of their professional and social lives as well. From college entrance essays to job cover letters to on-the-job writing, a strong command of narrative elements makes writing stand out and enables effective communication. The Common Core State Standards has set the expectation that students will develop stronger and stronger narrative writing skills from kindergarten through twelfth grade; in all content areas students are expected to know how to use narrative elements within their non-narrative writing.

Second, beyond test scores and data and standards, our adolescents need opportunities to write about their lives. It is a time of personal upheavals, emotional roller-coasters, shifting perspectives that dramatically change our students' lives forever. Teachers who devote time each year to a study of narrative writing always report that they hear their students' voices like never before, that they find the tone of their classroom—often that of the school—shifts in dramatic ways. Narrative writing is not just an expectation within national standards, it is a tool that quite literally changes lives.

As we start our first unit of writing, it is important to hold onto two ideas at once: that our adolescent writers have most likely written many personal narratives before this one, and that the process of growing as writers never ends. This means that we need to not only find ways to create a unit that feels fresh for adolescents, we also need to tailor this unit to the strengths and needs of our current students, instead of replaying the same teaching points from last year. We suggest that your sixth graders begin with personal narrative. However, if upon looking at your students' on-demand pieces you find they have fairly strong control of this type of writing, then you may decide that some of your writers are ready to launch solely with the memoir writing unit. In that case look to the seventh grade curricular calendar for ideas on how to start the year with that sophisticated genre. On the other hand, if your students do not bring a background of workshop with them and have not experienced a unit like this in the past—which is the case in some of our middle schools which feed from a variety of other elementary schools—then we recommend you rely more on the book Launching the Writing Workshop from Units of Study for Teaching Writing, Grades 3-5 (Heinemann 2006) which provides minilesson and conferring support for students very new to both personal narrative writing and to a workshop setting.
