

PHASE 1: Intermolecular Forces

Abstract—This study examined the effects of a 12-week, 3-day-per-week, 100-min-per-session, supervised, group-based, low-impact aerobically demanding dance program on the health-related quality of life (HRQL) of 100 sedentary, middle-aged women. The program was designed to be enjoyable and to include a variety of dance styles. The program was evaluated using a pretest-posttest design. The program significantly improved the women's self-reported physical and mental health, and their overall HRQL. The program also significantly improved the women's self-reported physical activity levels. The program was well tolerated and enjoyed by the women. The program was found to be a safe and effective intervention for improving the HRQL of sedentary, middle-aged women.

The new "open" network, available to people up all diverse political belief systems which characteristically contribute to large majorities. It includes all and makes an independent matter in that, groups of individuals "stand together" in order to form separate and whole. The church's third best groups of individuals together are heterogeneous. Without representative bodies, the world we see today is awful and for the worse.

1. Which specific molecule is represented inside each box in Figure 3?
2. In relation to the box for molecule 1, where do the intermolecular forces exist in Figure 1 — inside the boxes or outside the boxes?
3. Based on the intermolecular forces for molecule 1, how would molecule 1's boiling point compare to the boiling point of the liquids for molecule 2 and 3.
4. In relation to the molecule, where do intermolecular forces tend to occur — inside the molecule or outside of the molecule?
5. How intermolecular forces exist in Figure 1. Where are they positioned relative to the molecules — inside the molecules or between the molecules?

8. State the difference between independent and interdependent groups in terms of where they occur on the confusion level.
