

Photosynthesis: What's in a Leaf?

What is the relationship between the structure and the function in a leaf?

Why?

What would the world be like without leaves—no grass for ball fields, no beautiful landscaping? It would also mean no oxygen for animals and no food for heterotrophs. Leaves are like living machines that recycle the carbon and oxygen in our environment. This process, driven by the sun's energy, allows for a constant supply of oxygen and food for the inhabitants of Earth.

Model 1 – Leaf Sun-Catcher

General Equation for Photosynthesis

1. List three things entering the leaf in Model 1. (Two of these are the reactants of photosynthesis)

Sunlight, water, and carbon dioxide

2. List three substances leaving the leaf. (Two of these are the products of photosynthesis)

Oxygen, water as a gas, and sugars

3. Which substance is both entering and leaving?

Water

4. How is the substance you identified in Question 3 changed between its entry and its exit?

Forests for a sustainable future: education modules for primary schools Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, Ministry of Natural Resources and Tourism, Dar es Salaam (United Republic of Tanzania), 2024-02-22
Designed for primary school children in Grades 3-5 in the United Republic of Tanzania these education modules are inspired by the principles of the education for sustainable development (ESD) approach. The ESD approach is based on learning methods that motivate and empower learners to make informed decisions, change their behaviour and take responsible action for environmental integrity, economic viability and a just society for present and future generations using a more hands-on and interactive approach than standardized education methods. The modules have been developed in collaboration with the Ministry of Natural Resources and Tourism and the Ministry of Education of the United Republic of Tanzania as part of the project 'Forests for a Sustainable Future: Educating Children' implemented by FAO and funded by the German Federal Ministry for Food and Agriculture (BMEL).

Wellburn, R.G. Alscher, 2012-12-06 The study of air pollution effects on vegetation has made rapid progress in the last five years Growing concerns about effects of future increases in temperature and carbon dioxide CO₂ levels on plant life have altered the perspective of plant biologists in the field of pollutant plant interactions In many cases it is anticipated that crops and trees will increasingly experience multiple stresses in an altered environment an environment in which physiological processes will no longer be matched to climate Because of this problem a major part of the focus of the air pollution effects research has shifted since 1987 Moreover recent advances in our understanding of plant metabolic and molecular responses to stress have made it clear that many abiotic stresses elicit similar fundamental mechanisms Adaptation responses to drought extremes of temperature xenobiotics and air pollutants are now known to involve the response of both specific and common resistance mechanisms which often include altered gene expression The field of air pollution effects on vegetation has benefitted greatly from this unification since results obtained and advances made in allied fields are now directly relevant The advent of molecular genetics has made possible the production of transgenic plants containing altered amounts of resistance gene products which enables the posing of experimental questions which could not be addressed only five years ago Hypotheses concerning the relevance of specific metabolites and processes to known responses to air pollution stress can now be tested
