

Study Guide: Physical and Chemical Oceanography

Effective composition of seawater is determined by:

- 1) Primary salinity - given amount of dissolved solids with respect to total weight, freshwater composition consists of 96.5% water and 3.5% solids
- 2) Source - water moving through salt balance from atmosphere through evaporation, rain, and ice melting contributes, resulting in different salinities, therefore not all seawater is identical
- 3) Secondary salinization process - physical, chemical, biological, hydrological factors trigger and change the chemical composition of water from its source to final

Effective salinity and composition on density:

- 1) Temperature - more important, decreases density
- 2) Salinity - increases density, increases temperature, decreases density

How temperature and salinity produce density, water volume, negative expansion:

Temperature differences cause water layers:

- 1) warmest water closest to the surface, cold water is near bottom
- 2) warm, less dense water is floating on a colder, denser water mass
- 3) when the temperature difference persists in the ocean, density is affected so as the stratification

Salinity differences cause water layers:

- 1) water closer to coast increases the density of water concentration
- 2) water with higher salinity, and lower density, floats above of water with higher salinity
- 3) density generally increases in salinity as the water increases
- 4) the higher the salinity the more likely to get change in density as the temp increases

Thrust:

how much rise and fall of sea level is expected as the tide goes in and out

Gravitational effects:

on the Earth, Moon, Sun's gravity causes water to rise

Barometric pressure - is the pressure in liquid column the water is pushed through

Pressure that affects tidal range - air pressure is pushing the water

Local atmospheric tidal range - air pressure is pushing the water range
