

Physical Science Module 2 Review Paper

Unit 1 Waves

- How is vibration an observable through continuous, transverse waves (as in the pendulum in this motion of the water).
- Transverse waves (the velocity) is a vibration (wave) the frequency controls wavelength. Longitudinal waves travel through a series of compressions and rarefactions.
- Waves can be described by amplitude, wavelength, and speed. Each one describes the wave.
- As a wave travels through a medium, particles are displaced and continue their normal motion about the wave source.
- Electromagnetic waves differ from other types of waves because they do not need matter through a medium.
- A vibrating wire is oscillating if it moves, you would need to know the maximum displacement from the equilibrium position.
- When the vibrating medium itself is moving, sometimes called a transverse wave, you can describe the wavelength.
- As described in wave frequency, pressure from the medium of oscillation is being pushed back.
- Sound is traveling through a medium, as a transverse displacement of matter (the same direction the wave is traveling). This type of wave is a longitudinal wave.
- Because the medium moves parallel to the direction of wave travel, it is called longitudinal waves.

Final Assignment Questions

Questions	Answers
What type of waves can only be described as transverse?	Waves that travel away through matter in radial perpendicular waves.
What is period?	Measuring the frequency in the number of waves.
What is the relationship between amplitude and period?	If the amplitude increases the period will also increase. For example, the volume depends on amplitude from the amplitude.
How does the type of medium affect a sound wave?	The wave speed for longitudinal waves depends on the speed of sound.
Describe the relationship between frequency and wavelength?	The shorter the wavelength, the higher the frequency.
