Handbook of Australian School Psychology Monica Thielking,Mark D. Terjesen,2017-01-26 This handbook addresses the current state and practice of school psychology with a focus on standards unique to Australia including historical legal ethical practical and training factors It provides a compilation of the most current research based practices as well as guidelines for evidence based assessment and intervention for common conditions e g autism depression learning disabilities and for delivering appropriate services to targeted student populations e.g. LGBT gifted medical issues. Chapters discuss the application of national and international school psychology practices within the Australian educational and psychological structure. The handbook also examines the lack of formal resources specific to Australia's culture and psychology systems with its unique mix of metropolitan cities and the vast geographic landscape that spans regional and remote areas. It offers numerous case studies and innovative school mental health programs as well as recommendations for professional development and advocacy that are unique to Australian school psychology. Topics featured in this Handbook include Evidence based assessment and intervention for dyscalculia and mathematical disabilities. Identification and management of adolescent risk taking behaviors and addictions. Understanding and responding to crisis and trauma in the school setting. Prevention and intervention for bullying in schools. Class and school wide approaches to addressing behavioral and academic needs. The role of school psychologists in the digital age. Practical advice for school psychologists facing complex ethical dilemmas. The Handbook of Australian School Psychology is a must have resource for researchers, scientist practitioners and graduate students in child and school psychology, social work and related fields that address mental health services for children and adolescents.

Practising Empowerment in Post-Apartheid South Africa Agatha Herman, 2017-07-28. Despite the promise and optimism surrounding the post apartheid transition, South African society continues to be highly racialised in its discourses, identities and practices even within the very strategies that aim to change power relations and heal racialised divisions. Renowned for its brutal past practices, the wine industry in South Africa has long been associated with white power and black exploitation and remains dogged by continuing allegations of poor working conditions and labour abuses. Through in depth longitudinal fieldwork, this book considers how different ethics interact and draws attention to the positive changes and continuing development challenges faced in South Africa. Situating practice at its heart, it brings a novel everyday and micro scale dimension to understandings of empowerment in the post apartheid South African wine industry. It develops a critical analysis of the interplay between practice as scaled and inherently spatial and discourse to conceptualise how big concepts such as empowerment are articulated, materialised and experienced at the ground level. Through this, it gives voices to the marginalised who experience empowerment setting these within the context of their relations with the other stakeholders who shape this engagement. This book contributes to broader critical social science debates around ethical development and questions of power and empowerment in development interventions. This is critical to reducing the disconnection between policy aims and realities within development and empowerment initiatives as well as enabling ethical commodities to be strategic in retaining their appeal throughout their networks. Washington Administrative Code, 1992.
