Crazy Twisters!

Most people would agree that a tornado doesn't need any special ingredients to cause massive amounts of destruction. After all, even an EF-0, the weakest category of tornado on the Enhanced Fujita Scale, can cause an average of $100 million in damage. When you think about it, it's not surprising that tornadoes are the most common weather-related natural disasters in the United States. Although they are often called "twisters," tornadoes are actually a type of storm that forms over land or water. They are most common in the central United States, where they can cause significant damage to property and even loss of life. However, many tornadoes go the extra mile, appearing in places where they are not expected, such as over the ocean or in the mountains.

Shark Attack!

Sun, sand, water, waves...there's nothing quite like a trip to the beach. Occasionally, however, the fun and relaxation are interrupted by every ocean swimmer's worst nightmare – a shark attack! While shark attacks are rare, they do happen. In fact, there are about 30 shark attacks in the United States each year. Most attacks occur in the summer months when more people are swimming in the ocean. While sharks are often portrayed as vicious predators, they are actually a vital part of the ocean ecosystem. They help keep the balance of the ocean by eating smaller fish. However, for many people who regularly frolic in shark-infested oceans, it is a scary thought. In fact, many people who swim in the ocean each year are afraid of sharks. They go to great lengths to avoid them, such as wearing shark repellent or carrying a shark deterrent. While sharks are a danger to humans, they are also a danger to the ocean ecosystem. Without sharks, the ocean would be a very different place.

SLEEPING ON ICE

When the weather turns cold, most people going on vacation choose to travel to warm places where they can temporarily escape the winter chill. Beach resort or island cruise, anyone? However, if you can't get enough of the snow and ice, perhaps you'd rather spend your winter vacation in the most wintry way possible – in an ice hotel!

An ice hotel is just what it sounds like: it's a hotel made entirely from snow and ice. Most commonly, it's built using a snow-ice mixture called snice, which is stronger and insulates better than snow or ice by itself. Most ice hotels are constructed using a steel frame, which is then filled in with the snice. When the steel frame is taken off, only a thick, sturdy, ice-walled building remains. Some ice hotels are structured like traditional hotels, while others offer guests the chance to stay in the over individual igloos. Regardless of style, all ice hotels depend for their existence on the temperature staying below freezing for the entire winter; consequently, there are only about 20 ice hotels in the world, and they are only found in places like Alaska, Canada, Sweden, Finland, Norway, and high elevations.

Walls aren't the only part of an ice hotel made from ice. Frozen food provides the building material for each chair, couch, table, desk, shelf, and light fixture inside the building as well. (Chairs and couches are covered with animal fur to make them comfortable for sitting.) Many ice hotels even offer amenities such as ice restaurants, bars, churches, and meeting rooms – all carved from solid ice, of course. Even small details like the cups in the ice restaurant are made of small chunks of ice if it can be made from ice, it probably is.

Yes – even the beds in an ice hotel are made of ice. While it might seem like a nightmare, many people who stay in ice hotels find it to be a unique and memorable experience. In fact, many people who stay in ice hotels find it to be a unique and memorable experience. In fact, many people who stay in ice hotels find it to be a unique and memorable experience.
