Proletarian Imagination Mark D. Steinberg, 2018-05-31 In fin de siècle and early revolutionary Russia a group of self educated workers produced a large body of poetry and prose in which they attempted to comprehend their rapidly changing world Witnesses to wars and revolution these men and women grappled on paper with the nature of civilization and the imperatives of ethical truth In a strikingly original approach to Russian culture Mark D Steinberg listens to their words which are little known today The results of their literary creativity he finds were frequently not what the new Soviet order was expecting from its workers despite its celebration of the notion of a proletarian art Through insightful readings of a vast fund of lower class writings Steinberg shows that the authors focused above all on the uncertain nature and place of the self the promise and dangers of modernity and the qualities of the sacred in both their lives and their imaginations Like their counterparts in the intelligentsia these worker writers were ambivalent about Marxist ideology celebration of the city and the factory and even about modern progress itself Drawing on vast research Steinberg demonstrates the texts significance for an understanding of Russian popular mentalities indeed for the very meaning philosophically and morally of these years of crisis and possibility at the end of the old order and the early years of the Soviet regime Creating Safe Space Tomoko Kuribayashi, Julie Ann Tharp, 1998-01-01 An anthology of literary essays focusing on the ways in which sexual emotional physical racial and other forms of violence have affected women artists imaginations opportunity to master the reading writing speaking listening and language skills articulated in the CCSS for ELA Writing New Identities Gisela Brinker-Gabler, Sidonie Smith, 1997 Life Writing in the Posthuman Anthropocene Ina Batzke, Lea Espinoza Garrido, Linda M. Hess, 2022-01-01 Life Writing in the Posthuman Anthropocene is a timely collection of insightful contributions that negotiate how the genre of life writing traditionally tied to the human perspective and thus anthropocentric qua definition can provide adequate perspectives for an age of ecological disasters and global climate change The volume's eight chapters illustrate the aptness of life writing and life writing studies to critically reevaluate the role of the human vis vis non human others while remaining mindful of persisting inequalities between humans regarding who causes and who suffers damage in the Anthropocene age The authors in this collection not only expand the toolbox of life writing studies by engaging with critical insights from the fields of posthumanism and ecocriticism but in turn also enrich those fields by offering unique approaches to contemplate the responsibility of humans for as well as their relational existence in the posthuman Anthropocene Historicizing Life-Writing and Egodocuments in Early Modern Europe James R. Farr, Guido Ruggiero, 2022-01-12 This volume historicizes the study of life writing and egodocuments focusing on early modern European reflections on the self self fashioning and identity Life writing and the study of egodocuments currently tend to be viewed as separate fields yet the individual as a purposive social actor provides significant common ground and offers a vehicle both theoretical and practical for a profitable synthesis of the two in a historical context Echoing scholars from a wide range of disciplines who recognize the uncertainty of the nature of the self these essays question the notion of the autonomous self and the attendant idea of continuous identity unfolding in a unified personality Instead they suggest that the early modern self was variable and unstable and can only be grasped by exploring selves situated in specific historical and social cultural contexts and revealed through the wide range of historical documents considered here The three sections of the volume consider first the theoretical contexts of understanding egodocuments in early modern Europe then the practical ways egodocuments from the period may be used for writing life histories today and finally a wider range of historical documents that might be added to what are usually seen as egodocuments A History of Autofiction Alexandra Effe, 2025-10-02 Mapping the largely neglected history of autofictional literature and describing developments against socio historical changes cultural trends and philosophical psychological discussions around self and mind this book both explores and historicizes autofiction's contemporary boom Beginning with the genre's emergence in 18th century England against changes in publishing culture and author concept and then tracing forms and functions of autofictional literature up to the contemporary moment A History of Autofiction highlights why select narrative strategies are abandoned transformed or repurposed which forms affordances and effects of autofictional modes are persistent and which were particular to a given period With focus on salient authors and texts from anglophone autofiction around the world and shining spotlights on insightful socio historical and biographical contexts Alexandra Effe foregrounds autofictional elements of works not previously considered for these dimensions and offers fresh perspectives on a range of canonical autofictional texts interdisciplinary in approach the book sheds light on autofictional phenomena through research in neuroscience psychology and philosophy of mind while demonstrating that autofictional literature holds insights for cognitive science Developing a cognitive holistic approach to the triad of author text and reader the book allows for a novel and more encompassing understanding of an important current cultural trend and of its diachronic development
