Coronavirus makes voting by mail even more important

Less than five months until Election Day, there's a surprisingly fierce debate over mail-in balloting, driven largely by an unpopular president apparently worried that too many people will cast votes.

But Trump's outbursts about the issue don't stand up to even casual scrutiny. The fact is, Trump himself votes by mail. All 50 states allow it to some degree.

A pandemic makes mail-in voting even more important. In April, after the Wisconsin Supreme Court blocked the governor's effort because of the pandemic, people still braved the polls in record numbers. Disease voting is person contracted COVID-19.

Since the coronavirus outbreak, election officials across the country have expanded access to absentee voting for primaries.

But Trump continues to make false allegations that states are sending mail-in ballots to noncitizens or people who aren't registered to vote.

This hand-wringing would be laughable if Trump wasn't thus sticking to "hold up" federal funding where battleground states are increasing voting by mail. The Republican Party is treating millions as a challenge to vote-by-mail initiatives.

The reality is that mail voting is poised to be a crisis, and the risks of fraud are tiny. A Washington Post analysis this month showed that in these vote-by-mail states, there were 172 questionable ballots out of 14.6 million cast, or 0.0017%.

To be sure, states need to adopt adequate safeguards as they race to expand mail voting. Ballot return envelopes should require the voter's signature and include a unique bar code.
