Abstract

Background: A randomized controlled trial was conducted of a whole-service cohort of children referred to the Paediatric Speech and Language Therapy Service of Middlesbrough Primary Care Trust between January 1999 and April 2000. The 730 children involved, aged up to 16 years, were diagnosed with primary speech and/or language impairment in the absence of any learning, physical or sensory difficulty.

Aims: The study considered outcomes of treatment versus no treatment.

Methods & Procedures: Treatment involved clinic-based interventions, provided according to local departmental criteria and care pathways, averaging 5.5 h (range 0–24 h) of contact during the 6-month period immediately following initial assessment. Assessments occurred within 8 weeks of referral and intervention began immediately thereafter.

Outcomes & Results: Treatment was significantly more effective than no treatment, over 6 months, both overall ($p < 0.001$) and for each of the three diagnostic categories (comprehension, expression and speech, each $p < 0.001$).

Conclusions: An average of 6 h of speech and language therapy in a 6-month period can produce significant improvement in performance, and it has been shown to be more effective than no treatment over the same 6-month period for children with primary speech and/or language impairment.

Keywords: children, speech, language impairment, evidence-based practice (EBP), speech and language therapy.

What this paper adds

What is already known on this subject?

There is little prior large group evidence for the effectiveness of intervention for children with primary speech and/or language impairment.

What this study adds

Speech and language therapy intervention is demonstrated as being more effective than no intervention for children with primary speech and/or language impairment.

Introduction

Speech and language impairment may be the most common difficulty presenting in early childhood (Law 1992) with a prevalence of around 6% of children (Barnford et al. 1998). The incidence of referral of this caseload to speech and language therapy (SLT) may be as high as 16.3% of the child population aged up to 16 years (Broomfield and Dodd 2004a). There is still limited evidence, however, concerning the clinical effectiveness of SLT intervention. In addition, the need for early SLT intervention for children who fail to acquire age-appropriate communication skills in the pre-school years has been questioned (Hall 1996). Law et al. (1998) suggested that the benefit is still not proven, and acknowledged that the available studies have been based on individuals and small groups.

Report Writing for Speech-language Pathologists Grace Middleton, 1992 Assessment of Communication Disorders in Children M.N. Hegde, Frances Pomaville, 2021-03-01

Assessment of Communication Disorders in Children Resources and Protocols Fourth Edition offers a unique combination of scholarly information invaluable resources and time saving protocols on assessment of the full range of communication disorders in children including nonverbal or minimally verbal children. Most resource books offer limited research and scholarly information thus making them unsuitable as textbooks for academic courses on assessment and diagnosis. Similarly most traditional textbooks do not include practical easy to use and time saving resources and protocols that the practicing clinicians can readily use during assessment sessions. By combining the strengths of traditional texts with newer assessment resources and protocols this one of a kind book offers a single comprehensive source that is suitable as a textbook and useful as a practical clinical resource. This bestselling and trusted text Includes an extensive discussion of issues in using standardized tests along with detailed information on psychometric principles and offers a detailed discussion of alternative assessment approaches that minimize the problems inherent to standardized tests. Describes a new comprehensive and integrated assessment approach that derives its strengths from the traditional as well as several alternative approaches. Addresses the multicultural issues in assessing communication disorders in children and integrates culturally responsive assessment procedures into the assessment protocols. Contains two chapters for each disorder one on resources that offers scholarly and research background and one on resources that describe practical procedures and protocols that save the clinician's preparation time. New to the Fourth Edition A new section on the assessment of voice in transgender and gender diverse adolescents. A new section on selective mutism in bilingual children included in alternative and integrated assessment of ethnoculturally diverse children. All normative tables placed in relevant chapter appendices for quick access. The content has been updated throughout to reflect the current state of research. Updated diagnostic features of all childhood communication disorders. All protocols streamlined and edited for precision in book and on website. Updated resources for commonly used assessment instruments and standardized tests now available on the companion website. All defined and key terms are now bolded. Simplified writing style and reduced redundancy for increased readability and comprehension.
