Supernatural
Entertainments Simone Natale,2016-03-31 In Supernatural Entertainments Simone Natale vividly depicts spiritualism s rise as a religious and cultural phenomenon and explores its strong connection to the growth of the media entertainment industry in the nineteenth century He frames the spiritualist movement as part of a new commodity culture that changed how public entertainments were produced and consumed Starting with the story of the Fox sisters considered the first spiritualist mediums in history Natale follows the trajectory of spiritualism in Great Britain and the United States from its foundation in 1848 to the beginning of the twentieth century He demonstrates that spiritualist mediums and leaders adopted many of the promotional strategies and spectacular techniques that were being developed for the broader entertainment industry Spiritualist mediums were indistinguishable from other professional performers as they had managers and agents advertised in the press and used spectacularism to draw audiences Addressing the overlap between spiritualism s explosion and nineteenth century show business Natale provides an archaeology of how the supernatural became a powerful force in the media and popular culture of today

The Making of British Anthropology, 1813-1871

Efram Sera-Shriar,2016-08-03 Victorian anthropology has been derided as an armchair practice distinct from the scientific discipline of the twentieth century But the observational practices that characterized the study of human diversity developed from the established sciences of natural history geography and medicine Sera Shriar argues that anthropology at this time went through a process of innovation which built on scientifically grounded observational study Far from being an evolutionary dead end nineteenth century anthropology laid the foundations for the field based science of anthropology today

Material Theories Elena Chestnova, 2022-06-19 Material Theories takes a radically new approach to well established thinking on nineteenth century architecture and design by investigating Gottfried Semper's classic ideas about dressing metamorphosis of material and cultural development culminating in his two volume publication Style This book demonstrates how Semper's theories crystallised among his encounters with material things of the late 1840s and early 1850s It examines several discursive frameworks and phenomena which shaped the attitude to artefacts in Europe in the mid nineteenth century and which were specifically pertinent to Semper's evolution archaeology and antiquarianism the domestic interior print media collections and the embodied relationship between the designer and their work For the first time this book examines the construction of a design theory not only as an intellectual endeavour but also as a process of confrontation with material things It employs recent approaches to material culture in particular Thing Theory in order to show that Semper's artefact references constituted his ideas rather than simply giving impetus to them It will be an important investigation for academics and researchers interested in interior design history as well as scholars of material culture and history of design theory

Theatre and Evolution from Ibsen to Beckett Kirsten E. Shepherd-Barr, 2015-03-03 Evolutionary theory made its stage debut as early as the 1840s reflecting a scientific advancement that was fast changing the world Tracing this development in dozens of mainstream European and American plays as well as in circus vaudeville pantomime and missing link performances Theatre and Evolution from Ibsen to Beckett reveals the deep transformative entanglement among science art and culture in modern times The stage proved to be no mere handmaiden to evolutionary science though often resisting and altering the ideas at its core Many dramatists cast suspicion on the arguments of evolutionary theory and rejected its claims even as they entertained its thrilling possibilities Engaging directly with the relation of science and culture this book considers the influence of not only Darwin but also Lamarck Chambers Spencer Wallace Haeckel de Vries and other evolutionists on 150 years of theater It shares significant new insights into the work of Ibsen Shaw Wilder and Beckett and writes female playwrights such as Susan Glaspell and Elizabeth Baker into the theatrical record unpacking their dramatic explorations of biological determinism gender essentialism the maternal instinct and the cult of motherhood It is likely that more people encountered evolution at the theater than through any other art form in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Considering the liveliness and immediacy of the theater and its reliance on a diverse community of spectators and the power that entails this book is a key text for grasping the extent of the public's adaptation to the new theory and the legacy of its representation on the perceived legitimacy or illegitimacy of scientific work

Brewing Science, Technology and Print, 1700-1880 James Sumner, 2015-07-28 How did the brewing of beer become a scientific process Sumner explores this question by charting the theory and practice of the trade in Britain and Ireland during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries

Light Touches Alice Barnaby, 2016-11-10 Light Touches Cultural Practices of Illumination 1800-1900 explores how urban lives in the nineteenth century were increasingly touched by innovations in the technologies and aesthetics of illumination. Dramatic changes in qualities of light and darkness became acutely palpable to the human sensorium using seeing, feeling, and being in light were now matters of intense personal and cultural concern. Light gave meaningful vitality to the period's material culture, and light itself became something to be perceptually consumed. Over the course of six chapters, Alice Barnaby traces how light was used in amateur artistic pastimes, interior design, and clothing fashions; spectacular public amusements, volatile street demonstrations, and art gallery designs. From these previously unexplored examples, a more complex history of light in the period emerges. Society's fascination with illumination, its desire to work with it and make meaning from it, gave rise to a distinctly new set of cultural practices. Through these practices, unexpected discoveries about the modern world were revealed. Light proved to be instrumental in everyday acts of experimentation and imaginative enquiry. Barnaby offers an intervention into the dominant scholarly narrative of the nineteenth century, which traditionally reads modernity as synonymous with the formation of a spectacular disembodied visuality. Light Touches in contrast returns vision to the body and foregrounds the actively felt as well as seen sensation of light. In coming to understand these cultural practices of illumination, the book reconsiders many assumptions about nineteenth-century modernity.

Victorian Interdisciplinarity and the Sciences Bernard Lightman, Efram Sera-Shriar, 2024-05-14. The specialization thesis, the idea that nineteenth-century science fragmented into separate forms of knowledge that led to the creation of modern disciplines, has played an integral role in the way historians have described the changing disciplinary map of nineteenth-century British science. This volume critically reevaluates this dominant narrative in the historiography. While new disciplines did emerge during the nineteenth century, the intellectual landscape was far muddier, and in many cases, new forms of specialist knowledge continued to cross boundaries while integrating ideas from other areas of study. Through a history of Victorian interdisciplinarity, this volume offers a more complicated and innovative analysis of discipline formation. Harnessing the techniques of cultural and intellectual history, studies of visual culture, Victorian studies, and literary studies, contributors break out of subject-based silos, exposing the tension between the rhetorical push for specialization and the actual practice of knowledge sharing across disciplines during the nineteenth century.

Lecturing the Victorians Anne B. Rodrick, 2024-07-25. We are a much-lectured people, wrote Robert Spence Watson in 1897. Beginning at mid-century, cities and towns across England used the popular lecture for purposes ranging from serious education to effervescent entertainment, and from regional pride to imperial belonging. Over time, the popular lecture became the quintessential embodiment of Victorian knowledge-based culture, which itself ranged from the production of new knowledge in the most elite of learned societies to the consumption of established knowledge in middle-class clubs and the hundreds of humble mechanics' institutions initially founded to provide scientific instruction to workers. What did the average Victorian talk and think about? How did the knowledge-based culture of lecture and debate enable men and women to demonstrate both civic engagement and cultural competence How does this knowledge based culture and its changing expression give us ways to look at Victorian citizenship long before the extension of the franchise With engaging and accessible prose Anne Rodrick draws from a variety of primary sources to provide fascinating answers to these pertinent questions Based on the analysis of several thousand lectures and debates delivered over more than 50 years this book digs deeply into what those individuals below the most elite levels thought heard debated and claimed as a badge of cultural competence By the turn of the 20th century the popular lecture was competing for attention with new institutions of leisure and of higher education and the discourse surrounding its place in contemporary England helps illuminate important debates over access to and deployment of knowledge and culture
