Homeowners and the Resilient City Thomas Thaler, Thomas Hartmann, Lenka Slavíková, Barbara Tempels, 2023-01-01. This book provides an important overview of how climate-driven natural hazards like river or pluvial floods, droughts, heat waves or forest fires continue to play a central role across the globe in the 21st century. Urban resilience has become an important term in response to climate change. Resilience describes the ability of a system to absorb shocks and depends on the vulnerability and recovery time of a system. A shock affects a system to the extent that it becomes vulnerable to the event. This book focuses on examining how private property owners might implement such measures or improve their individual coping and adaptive capacity to respond to future events. The book looks at the existence of various planning, legal, financial incentives and psychological factors designed to encourage individuals to take an active role in natural hazard risk management and through the presentation of theoretical discussions and empirical cases shows how urban resilience can be achieved. In addition, the book guides the reader through different conceptual frameworks by showing how urban regions are trying to reach urban resilience on privately owned land. Each chapter focuses on different cultural, socio-economic and political backgrounds to demonstrate how different institutional frameworks have an impact.

Positive organizational psychology and leadership in organizational behavior and culture Gozde Sezen-Gultekin, Osman Titrek, Ana Campina, Carlos Francisco De Sousa Reis, 2023-10-06. Evolutionary Origin of Sensory and Neurosecretory Cell Types Gerhard Schlosser, 2021-06-17. Most vertebrate cranial sense organs arise from placodes. These placodes give rise to sensory neurons that transmit information to the brain and neurosecretory cells. This book reviews the evolutionary origin of the sensory and neurosecretory cell types. It summarizes our current understanding of vertebrate evolution, clarifies conceptual issues relating to homology and evolutionary innovation of cell types, compares the sensory and neurosecretory cell types with similar cell types in other animals and addresses the question of how cranial placodes evolved as novel structures in vertebrates by redeploying pre-existing and sometimes evolutionarily ancient cell types.

The Emergent African Union Law Olufemi Amao, Michèle Olivier, Konstantinos D. Magliveras, 2021. This edited collection explores the role of law in the regional integration effort in Africa and assesses the extent to which African Union law is having an impact on domestic law across the continent. It analyses how the African Union is engendering new norms and standards in areas such as economic regulation and democratic constitutionalism.

Performance-Based Specifications and Control of Concrete Durability Hans Beushausen,Luis Fernandez Luco,2015-09-24 This work gives an overview of significant research from recent years concerning performance based design and quality control for concrete durability and its implementation In engineering practice performance approaches are often still used in combination with prescriptive requirements This is largely because for most durability test methods sufficient practical experience still has to be gained before engineers and owners are prepared to fully rely on them This book compiled by RILEM TC 230 PSC is intended to assist efforts to successfully build the foundation for the full implementation of performance based approaches through the exchange of relevant knowledge and experience between researchers and practitioners worldwide

Abnormal Psychology Ann M. Kring,Sheri L. Johnson,2018-01-09 Abnormal Psychology The Science and Treatment of Psychological Disorders consists of a balance and blending of research and clinical application the use of paradigms as an organizing principle and involving the learner in the kinds of real world problem solving engaged in by clinicians and scientists Students learn that psychopathology is best understood by considering multiple perspectives and that these varying perspectives provide the clearest accounting of the causes of these disorders as well as the best possible treatments

Democracy, Elections, and Constitutionalism in Africa Charles M. Fombad,Nico Steytler,2021-03-18 The third wave of democracy that reached African shores at the end of the Cold War brought with it a dramatic decline from 1990 onwards in dictatorships military regimes one party governments and presidents for life Multiparty democracy was at the core of the constitutional revolutions that swept through most of Africa in those watershed years However that wave is either losing momentum or receding or being reversed in its entirety This volume examines democracy and elections in Africa a focus motivated by two concerns First after 30 years it is important to take stock of the state of constitutional democracy on the continent The democratic gains of the 1990s and 2000s seem to be falling by the wayside with the evidence mounting that regimes are concealing authoritarianism under the veneer of elections doing so in an international context where populist regimes are on the rise and free and fair multiparty elections are consequently no longer a given It is becoming a battle to protect and retain constitutional democracy The second reason for this volume s focus on democracy and elections is that multiparty democracy is essential for the proper functioning of the state in addressing the major problems facing Africa internal conflict inequality and lack of development and poor governance and corruption The focus of this volume is thus on how competitive politics or multiparty democracy can be realized and how through competition such politics could lead to better policy and practice outcomes
