Shier, K.T. Wallenius, 1999-11-11 The practice of modeling is best learned by those armed with fundamental methodologies and exposed to a wide variety of modeling experience Ideally this experience could be obtained by working on actual modeling problems But time constraints often make this difficult Applied Mathematical Modeling provides a collection of models illustrating the power and richness of the mathematical sciences in supplying insight into the operation of important real world systems It fills a gap within modeling texts focusing on applications across a broad range of disciplines The first part of the book discusses the general components of the modeling process and highlights the potential of modeling in practice These chapters discuss the general components of the modeling process and the evolutionary nature of successful model building The second part provides a rich compendium of case studies each one complete with examples exercises and projects In keeping with the multidimensional nature of the models presented the chapters in the second part are listed in alphabetical order by the contributor's last name. Unlike most mathematical books in which you must master the concepts of early chapters to prepare for subsequent material, you may start with any chapter. Begin with cryptology if that catches your fancy or go directly to bursty traffic if that is your cup of tea. Applied Mathematical Modeling serves as a handbook of in-depth case studies that span the mathematical sciences, building upon a modest mathematical background. Readers in other applied disciplines will benefit from seeing how selected mathematical modeling philosophies and techniques can be brought to bear on problems in their disciplines. The models address actual situations studied in chemistry, physics, demography, economics, civil engineering, environmental engineering, industrial engineering, telecommunications, and other areas.

Handbook of Metaheuristics Fred W. Glover, Gary A. Kochenberger, 2006-04-11

Metaheuristics in their original definition are solution methods that orchestrate an interaction between local improvement procedures and higher-level strategies to create a process capable of escaping from local optima and performing a robust search of a solution space. Over time, these methods have also come to include any procedures that employ strategies for overcoming the trap of local optimality in complex solution spaces, especially those procedures that utilize one or more neighborhood structures as a means of defining admissible moves to transition from one solution to another or to build or destroy solutions in constructive and destructive processes. The degree to which neighborhoods are exploited varies according to the type of procedure. In the case of certain population-based procedures such as genetic algorithms, neighborhoods are implicitly and somewhat restrictively defined by reference to replacing components of one solution with those of another by variously chosen rules of exchange, popularly given the name of crossover. In other population-based methods based on the notion of path relinking, neighborhood structures are used in their full generality, including constructive and destructive neighborhoods as well as those for transitioning between complete solutions. Certain hybrids of classical evolutionary approaches, which link them with local search, also use neighborhood structures more fully, though apart from the combination process itself.
