Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise. The control group did not exercise. The HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week training program. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant decrease in both HR and BP compared to the control group. The HR decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the BP decreased from 120/80 to 110/70 mmHg. These results suggest that a 12-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or other light sources. To avoid this, there are two things the producer should do:
 - 1. Turn off the lights at the end of the day.
 - 2. Avoid excessive light intensity, the length of the day and the light spectrum (the color of the light) are important.
- The end of the day is the best time to change the light spectrum. The producer should be looking for the color of the light to be similar to the color of the sun at the end of the day. The spectrum of the light should be similar to the spectrum of the sun at the end of the day. The spectrum of the light should be similar to the spectrum of the sun at the end of the day.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. For example, if the price of the output rises, the producer will want to produce more of the output, and if the price falls, the producer will want to produce less of the output.
