Women's Political Leadership for Sustainable Development Anna-Katharina von Stauffenberg, 2025-02-11 This book posits that women's political leadership is vital for transitions to a sustainable future. It investigates the unsustainability of the current social order, offers strategies for achieving sustainable development, and explores the structure and agency variables that enable women political leaders to successfully drive political innovations for a greater societal transformation. This book sheds light on the genesis of the current capitalist social order, the transformational role of the state, political leadership, political innovations, and particularly women leaders in driving sustainable development. The book analyses three case studies of women leaders who have successfully implemented political innovations for sustainable statehood and development on national, regional, and local governance levels. Jacinda Ardern, Carole Delga, and Valérie Plante. From these case studies, the author demonstrates which agency and structural prerequisites are crucial for women political leaders to become a driving force behind creating the conditions needed for a sustainable future. Taking both a theoretical and an empirical approach, this is key reading for graduate students and researchers interested in political leadership, gender, and politics, political innovations, sustainability sciences, and transition research. It will also be of interest to political leaders and those advising them looking to understand the leadership styles, skills, and strategies needed to successfully drive progressive political agendas for sustainable statehood and development.

Women and Leadership in the European Union Henriette Müller, Ingeborg Tömmel, 2022

This volume is the first comprehensive analysis of women's ascendance to leadership positions in the European Union as well as their performance in such positions. It provides a new theoretical and analytical framework capturing both positional and behavioural leadership and the specific hurdles that women encounter on their path to and when exercising leadership. The volume encompasses a detailed set of single and comparative case studies analyzing women's representation and performance in the core EU institutions and their individual pathways to and exercise of power in top level functions as well as comparative analyses regarding the position and behaviour of women in relation to men. Based on these individual studies the volume draws overarching conclusions about women's leadership in the EU. Regarding positional leadership women continue to be underrepresented in leadership positions they more often hold less prestigious portfolios in such positions and manifold structural hurdles hamper their access to power. Furthermore huge variations exist across EU institutions with the intergovernmental bodies being the hardest to access. Regarding behavioural leadership women acting in powerful EU positions generally perform excellently. They successfully exercise a combined leadership style that integrates attributes of leadership considered to be masculine and feminine. This is not to argue that women per se are the better leaders. Yet more often than men they are exposed to stronger selection processes and their prevalent practice of a combined leadership style tends to best meet the requirements of modern democratic systems and particularly those of the highly fragmented EU.
