These physicians thought a serious disease (epidemiology) caused their illness (diagnosis) and that the cause was a virus (etiology). Furthermore, they had a general idea of how the virus was spread (transmission) and they knew how to prevent it (prevention). However, they did not know how to cure it (therapy). The physicians' knowledge of the disease was not complete, but it was enough to make them feel that they had a good idea of what was going on.
