Household expenditures across the border generally are the same. But important differences in the way that expenditures are reported to the general ledger can be seen in the way that the two countries use their general ledger. In the United States, the general ledger is the income tax return. In the United Kingdom, the general ledger is the annual accounts. The two countries use different general ledger systems, and this can lead to differences in the way that expenditures are reported to the general ledger.

Multi-state management capabilities is another very important technology aspect that needs to be addressed. While the traditional ERP system the majority of firms used has offered the companies necessary control over the operational budget, marketing and production in the past, financial information about the organization and the state of operations is not regularly shared, and the existing data tends to be outdated. Under no circumstances can leaders be doing an effective marketing and sales plan against data where the number are stale. The organization must use the following business model:
