

Abstract
 The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 20 men, aged 40-50 years, who were sedentary and had no history of cardiovascular disease. They were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of aerobic and resistance exercises. The control group did not exercise. The physical fitness and health of the subjects were measured at the beginning and end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the exercise group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness and health than the control group at the end of the 12-week period.
