

Periodic Trends Worksheet

Directions: Use your notes to answer the following questions.

1. Rank the following elements by increasing atomic radius: carbon, aluminum, oxygen, potassium.

Oxygen < Carbon < Aluminum < Potassium

2. Rank the following elements by increasing electronegativity: sulfur, oxygen, neon, aluminum.

Neon < Aluminum < Sulfur < Oxygen

3. Why does fluorine have a higher ionization energy than iodine?

Fluorine has nine protons attracting 9 electrons which are much closer to the nucleus compared to iodine. This results in smaller size of Fluorine than iodine making it difficult to remove an electron from the atom.

4. Why do elements in the same family generally have similar properties?

Because they have same number of electrons in the outer shell (valence electrons) which take part in chemical reaction.

5. Indicate whether the following properties increase or decrease from left to right across the periodic table.

- | | |
|--|------------------|
| a. atomic radius (excluding noble gases) | Decreases |
| b. first ionization energy | Increases |
| c. electronegativity | Increases |

6. What trend in atomic radius occurs down a group on the periodic table? What causes this trend?

Atomic radius increases down the group on the periodic table. As we compare the elements down the group, the effective nuclear charge increases, but at the same time the outermost electrons are found in the shell that is farther away from the nucleus. Also the number of screening electrons increases. This results in reduced attraction between the nucleus and the outermost electrons.

7. What trend in ionization energy occurs across a period on the periodic table? What causes this trend?

The Periodic Table I D. Michael P. Mingos, 2020-02-05 As 2019 has been declared the International Year of the Periodic Table it is appropriate that Structure and Bonding marks this anniversary with two special volumes In 1869 Dmitri Ivanovitch Mendeleev first proposed his periodic table of the elements He is given the major credit for proposing the conceptual framework used by chemists to systematically inter relate the chemical properties of the elements However the concept of periodicity evolved in distinct stages and was the culmination of work by other chemists over several decades For example Newland s Law of Octaves marked an important step in the evolution of the periodic system since it represented the first clear statement that the properties of the elements repeated after intervals of 8 Mendeleev s predictions demonstrated in an impressive manner how the periodic table could be used to predict the occurrence and properties of new elements Not all of his many predictions proved to be valid but the discovery of scandium gallium and germanium represented sufficient vindication of its utility and they cemented its enduring influence Mendeleev s periodic table was based on the atomic weights of the elements and it was another 50 years before Moseley established that it was the atomic number of the elements that was the fundamental parameter and this led to the prediction of further elements Some have suggested that the periodic table is one of the most fruitful ideas in modern science and that it is comparable to Darwin s theory of evolution by natural selection proposed at approximately the same time There is no doubt that the periodic table occupies a central position in chemistry In its modern form it is reproduced in most undergraduate inorganic textbooks and is present in almost every chemistry lecture room and classroom This first volume provides chemists with an account of the historical development of the Periodic Table and an overview of how the Periodic Table has evolved over the last 150 years It also illustrates how it has guided the research programmes of some distinguished chemists
