Portfolio Construction And Risk Budgeting:

Portfolio Construction and Risk Budgeting Bernd Scherer, 2002 It provides the key concepts and methods to implement quantitatively driven portfolio construction Areas include satellite investing estimation error heuristics scenario optimisation mean variance investing Bayesian methods budgeting active risk non normality and multiple manager allocation The emphasis is on practical applications and problem solving written in a highly accessible style The title contains quantitative analysis that is supported by extensive examples tables and charts to help practitioners adopt the subject matter in their day to day work Portfolio Construction and Risk Budgeting, 2010 Portfolio Construction and Risk Budgeting Bernd Scherer, 2014 Building on the solid foundation of the previous bestselling editions this significantly extended fifth edition of Portfolio Construction and Risk Budgeting updates content and incorporates a more practical approach than previous editions Bernd Scherer provides a critical review of a range of portfolio management techniques highlighting strengths weaknesses and how to implement quantitatively driven portfolio construction Resumen de editor A Generalized Risk Budgeting Approach to Portfolio Construction Martin Brendan Haugh, 2016 Risk based asset allocation models have received considerable attention in recent years This increased popularity is due in part to the difficulty in estimating expected returns as well as the financial crisis of 2008 which has helped reinforce the key role of risk in asset allocation In this study we propose a generalized risk budgeting GRB approach to portfolio construction In a GRB portfolio assets are grouped into possibly overlapping subsets and each subset is allocated a pre specified risk budget Minimum variance risk parity and risk budgeting portfolios are all special instances of a GRB portfolio The GRB portfolio optimization problem is to find a GRB portfolio with an optimal risk return profile where risk is measured using any positively homogeneous risk measure When the subsets form a partition the assets all have the same expected return and we restrict ourselves to long only portfolios then the GRB problem can in fact be solved as a convex optimization problem In general however the GRB problem is a constrained non convex problem for which we propose two solution approaches The first approach uses a semidefinite programming SDP relaxation to obtain an upper bound on the optimal objective function value In the second approach we develop a numerical algorithm that integrates augmented Lagrangian and Markov chain Monte Carlo MCMC methods in order to find a point in the vicinity of a very good local optimum This point is then supplied to a standard non linear optimization routine with the goal of finding this local optimum It should be emphasized that the merit of this second approach is in its generic nature in particular it provides a starting point strategy for any non linear optimization algorithm

Handbook of Portfolio Construction John B. Guerard, Jr., 2009-12-12 Portfolio construction is fundamental to the investment management process In the 1950s Harry Markowitz demonstrated the benefits of efficient diversification by formulating a mathematical program for generating the efficient frontier to summarize optimal trade offs between expected return and risk The Markowitz framework continues to be used as a basis for both practical portfolio construction and emerging research in financial economics Such concepts as the Capital Asset Pricing Model CAPM and the Arbitrage Pricing Theory APT for example provide the foundation for setting benchmarks for predicting returns and risk and for performance measurement This volume showcases original essays by some of today s most prominent academics and practitioners in the field on the contemporary application of Markowitz techniques Covering a wide spectrum of topics including portfolio selection data mining tests and multi factor risk models the book presents a comprehensive approach to portfolio construction tools models frameworks and analyses with both practical and theoretical implications
