Popobawa Katrina Daly Thompson, 2017-02-06 Bravely takes on not the legendary shapeshifting creature spoken about sporadically on the Swahili coast of Tanzania but rather popobawa discourse The Journal of Modern African Studies Since the 1960s people on the islands off the coast of Tanzania have talked about being attacked by a mysterious creature called Popobawa a shapeshifter often described as having an enormous penis Popobawa's recurring attacks have become a popular subject for stories conversation gossip and humor that has spread far beyond East Africa Katrina Daly Thompson shows that talk about Popobawa becomes a tool that Swahili speakers use for various creative purposes such as subverting gender segregation advertising homosexuality or discussing female sexuality By situating Popobawa discourse within the social and cultural world of the Swahili Coast as well as the wider world of global popular culture Thompson demonstrates that uses of this legend are more diverse and complex than previously thought and provides insight into how women and men communicate in a place where taboo prohibition and restraint remain powerful cultural forces While Popobawa surely belongs to one of the most interesting African legends Katrina Daly Thompson instead of asking where the story originated asks about how people talk about this trickster and what these conversations really mean Claudia Boehme University of Trier A well researched and well documented addition to the body of knowledge on local legends and their global manifestations Journal of Folklore Research Thompson's movement between local and global discourses demonstrates the importance of a phenomenon that could otherwise be viewed as exotic ethnographic trivia while her theoretical orientation makes the text as relevant to linguistic anthropologists as to African studies scholars African Studies Review
