The Nervous System

The nervous system is an extremely complex, highly intricate, and very sensitive structure that regulates everything that happens throughout the human body. The main purpose of all the nervous system and its various parts is to carry and send information, and that's what keeps the neurons. The nervous system is basically made of thousands of specialized cells called neurons, which are the basic building blocks of the nervous system.

Central Nervous System

The central nervous system, or CNS, is the part of the nervous system that is located in the brain and spinal cord. It is the most complex part of the nervous system. The brain is the control center of the body, and it is located within the protective hard skull. Layers of meninges and cerebrospinal fluid also protect the CNS. The spinal cord is made of many thousands of neurons that are located in the spinal column. There are 31 segments in the spinal cord, and each segment is made up of many thousands of neurons that are located in the spinal cord.

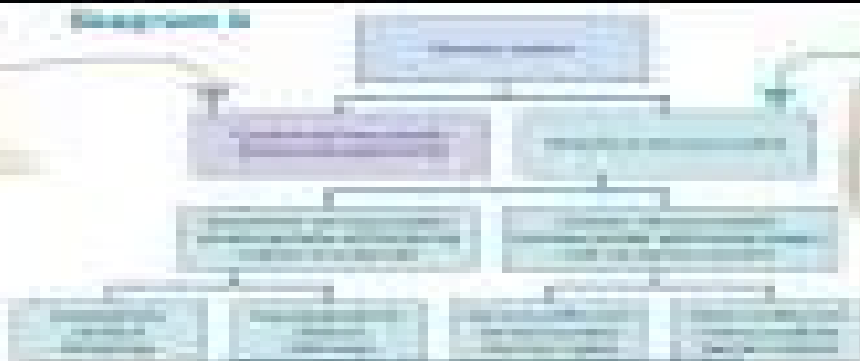

Peripheral Nervous System

There are all parts of the nervous system that are not the central nervous system, and they make up the peripheral nervous system, or PNS. The PNS is made up of all sensory neurons that are capable of receiving stimuli, and sensory neurons that are capable of responding to stimuli. For example, sensory neurons in the eye and ear are capable of receiving light stimuli and sound vibrations, and they send the information about these stimuli to the CNS.

The PNS is also made up of the somatic and autonomic nervous systems, and the autonomic system is the part of the nervous system that controls the involuntary functions of the body. The somatic system is the part of the nervous system that controls the voluntary functions of the body. The autonomic system is the part of the nervous system that controls the involuntary functions of the body. The somatic system is the part of the nervous system that controls the voluntary functions of the body. The autonomic system is the part of the nervous system that controls the involuntary functions of the body.

The Brain

The brain is the most complex part of the nervous system, and it is located in the head. It is made up of billions of neurons that are capable of receiving stimuli, and sensory neurons that are capable of responding to stimuli. The brain is the control center of the body, and it is located within the protective hard skull. Layers of meninges and cerebrospinal fluid also protect the brain. The brain is made up of many thousands of neurons that are located in the brain. There are 31 segments in the spinal cord, and each segment is made up of many thousands of neurons that are located in the spinal cord.
