Lauren, a 20-year-old female, was referred to the clinic by her mother, who reported that Lauren had been experiencing difficulty with school and social interactions since the age of 10. Lauren's mother stated that Lauren had always been a shy and reserved child, but over the years, her social skills had deteriorated significantly. Lauren's academic performance had also declined, and she had become increasingly withdrawn and anxious. Lauren's mother expressed concern about Lauren's future and sought professional help to address these issues.
