Fischer, 2017-10-18 This volume collects eight essays that all attempt to answer two key concerns did markets for seafarers exist in the age of sail and if so were these markets efficient The question was initially approach by Charles Kindleberger who claims a market is efficient if it permits free access for employer and employee is supply and demand match balance so that wages increase and that labour must command the same price across the market The first four focus on the broadly defined early modern period and all agree on the existence of the markets but are divided over whether or not they are efficient The second section asks the same questions of the nineteenth century and receives similar answers All of the essays take issue with the definition and application of the term efficiency when approaching their conclusions Each author is considered an expert within their field and all base their research on the North Atlantic Section 1 These essays focus on the early modern period of maritime history Carla Rahn Phillips considers the market for maritime labour in early modern Spain finding that despite the necessity of sailors and existence of the market wages remained low and skilled maritime labourers did not have bargaining power rendering the system inefficient Vince Walsh examines Salem Massachusetts and finds that the market within Salem was efficient yet would only recruit within Salem and suffered as a result Paul van Royen focusses on seventeenth and eighteenth century Netherlands and finds the organisations functioned well but enable huge discrepancies in wages David Starkey chose eighteenth century England noting a fluctuation between efficiency and inefficiency across markets All authors find their work linked by the prevalence of these markets and their own difficulties in determining efficiency within these economies Section 2 These essays focus on the maritime history of the nineteenth century David Williams discusses the emergence on the advance note and the tremendous influence it had on market behaviour indicating inefficient markets Yrjo Kaukiainen considers Finland s history of interconnected local maritime labour markets but also struggles to quantify their efficiency after also taking issue with the ambiguous phrase Lewis R Fischer addresses the imbalance of wages in Norwegian maritime markets and finds that despite the integration from local to regional markets the system remained inefficient Finally Morten Hahn Pedersen and Poul Holm consider the fishing and shipping markets in Denmark and believe the wage inconsistencies reflect an inefficient system Electrical Supervisor ,1956 The Fourth Force Geoff Puddefoot, 2010-03-10 Set up in August 1905 the Royal Fleet Auxiliary was originally a logistic support organization part of the Navy proper but run on civilian lines comprising a miscellaneous and very unglamorous collection of colliers store ships and harbor craft Just over a century later it has evolved beyond recognition its ships compare in size cost and sophistication with all but the largest warships and the RFA itself has developed into an essential arm of all three Services It is truly the Fourth Force as it is known to its own personnel and without it the current worldwide deployment of British service men and women would be simply impossible This book charts the veritable revolution that has overtaken the RFA since the end of the Second World War New technology and techniques reflect the rapid growth in the importance of logistics in modern warfare while the broadening role of the RFA is to be seen in the history of its operations many of them little known to the public Woven together from a combination of technical ship data official correspondence and personal recollections it is predominantly about the men and women of the RFA and their stories an insight into the underreported history of a service whose initials unofficially translate as Ready For Anything The Literary Journal, and Weekly
