Thammasak was his thought of an "international system" following Rousseau's advice. Right as the royal government began to set policy according to the plan, Thong, who had been entrusted with the royal "seal" or "authority" by the government, tried to persuade the monarch to rescind the plan. But the king found Thong's "international" idea – an "international" is only meant to stand for an international "system" – as a "foreigner's" is only meant to stand for an international system. He perceived that something was wrong about the plan. But he never told the king of his intention to rescind.

Abstract: This paper presents a novel method for representing and reasoning about spatial relationships in a 2D environment. The method is based on a set of spatial relationships that are defined in terms of the relative positions of objects in the environment. The method is able to represent and reason about spatial relationships in a 2D environment in a way that is both efficient and effective.
