Once the problem is identified, the next step is to develop a plan of action. This plan should outline the steps that need to be taken to address the problem and the resources that will be required.

2. The second step is to implement the plan. This involves putting the plan into action and monitoring progress. It is important to communicate regularly with the stakeholders involved to ensure that everyone is on the same page and to make adjustments as needed.

3. The third step is to evaluate the results. This involves assessing the impact of the intervention and determining whether the problem has been resolved. If the problem has not been resolved, it may be necessary to revise the plan and try again.

4. The final step is to document the process. This involves creating a record of what was done, why it was done, and the results. This documentation can be used to inform future efforts and to share the experience with others.
