

The Variety of Maps

(by David Smith)

Many maps are designed to show a specific piece of information, such as a map of the United States showing the location of the capital cities of each state. These maps are designed to be used as a reference tool, and they are often used in a variety of ways. For example, a map of the United States showing the location of the capital cities of each state can be used to show the location of the capital cities of each state, or it can be used to show the location of the capital cities of each state.

The purpose of a map is to provide information about a specific area. Maps are used in a variety of ways, and they are often used to show the location of a specific place. For example, a map of the United States showing the location of the capital cities of each state can be used to show the location of the capital cities of each state, or it can be used to show the location of the capital cities of each state. Maps are also used to show the location of a specific place, and they are often used to show the location of a specific place.
