Career Technical Education Daniel W. Hancock, 2009-12 An estimated 30% of California's entering 9th graders do not finish high school In L A County the dropout rate estimated at 55% is higher than the graduation rate The current focus on career tech ed CTE is a measure of the intensity of the search for solutions CTE with its real world relevance and project based learning is a way to engage students in education that is different than a purely academic approach This study of CTE found encouraging evidence that CTE in its modern academically demanding form can deliver an alternative approach to learning that can keep students engaged help improve grade point averages and prepare students for both the work world and higher education Illustrations The Harvard Education Letter, 2003 Career Technical Education Commission on California State Government Organization and Economy, 2007 Why We Teach Science John L. Rudolph, 2022-12-20 Few people question the importance of science education in American schooling The public readily accepts that it is the key to economic growth through innovation develops the ability to reason more effectively and enables us to solve the everyday problems we encounter through knowing how the world works Good science teaching results in all these benefits and more or so we think But what if all this is simply wrong What if the benefits we assume science education produces turn out to be an illusion nothing more than wishful thinking In Why We Teach Science and Why We Should former high school teacher and historian of science education John L Rudolph examines the reasons we've long given for teaching science and assesses how they hold up to what we know about what students really learn or don't learn in science classrooms and what research tells us about how people actually interact with science in their daily lives The results will surprise you Instead of more and more rigorous traditional science education to fill the STEM pipeline Rudolph challenges us to think outside the box and makes the case for an expansive science education aimed instead at rebuilding trust between science and the public something we desperately need in our current era of impending natural challenges and science denial Specifications Grading 2.0 Linda B. Weaver, 1998-01-01 Explores grading strategies for English composition teachers that are consistent with modern discourse and pedagogical theories Charting a Course to Standards-Based Grading Tim Westerberg, 2016-08-24 What s the best way to ensure that grading policies are fair accurate and consistent across classrooms How can schools transition to a grading system that better reflects what students are actually learning Tim R Westerberg makes this journey easier by offering a continuum of options with four destinations on the road to improved grading and assessment Destination 1 critically examines such popular grading mechanisms as the zero extra credit the semester killer project averaging mixing academic performance with work ethic and refusing to accept late work and explains how they undermine objectivity and instead result in widely divergent grades for comparable work with major consequences for students Destination 2 invites educators to put assessment and grading into the larger context of a districtwide guaranteed and viable curriculum and lays out the organizational conditions and necessary steps to accomplish this goal Destination 3 brings parents and others on board with a multiyear implementation plan and community engagement strategies for introducing report cards that indicate student achievement by standards rather than or in addition to letter grades Destination 4 competency based education involves a total rethinking of the nature and structure of school leading to individualized education for all students However far they choose to go administrators and teacher leaders can turn to Charting a Course to Standards Based Grading for the quick wins and long term support and guidance they need to make the trip well worth the effort
