

Goods and Service Tax came into force on 1 July 2017 across India. This implementation of the act came into force with the implementation of 101 Amendment of the Indian Constitution by the Government of India. The implementation of GST replaced the other existing indirect taxes including service tax, vat, custom duty, excise duty etc. Currently, all the indirect tax rules, regulations, rates are administered by the Goods and Service Tax council. This council consists of finance ministers of all states and central government.

History of GST

The reform indirect tax regime in India began in the year 1985 by Vishwanath Pratap Singh, then Finance Minister of India. (At that time Rajiv Gandhi was the Prime Minister of India). The government of India in the same year with the introduction of the MODVAT tax which is also known as Modified Value Added Tax. Later, the other Prime Minister of India P V Narasimha Rao and his Finance Minister Manmohan Singh was of the idea to implement the scheme of Values Added Tax also known as VAT for every state.

Later, in the year 1999, the proposal for the implementation of Goods and Service Tax also known as GST was proposed in a meeting in front of the Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee and his panel of economic advisory which includes governors of Reserve Bank of India IG Patel, C Rangarajan and Bimal Jalan. The aforesaid advisory committee was later governed by the Finance Minister of West Bengal Asim Dasgupta to form a design for the model of GST.

The Ravi Dasgupta Committee later provided the task to put the backend technology and the logistics. However, in the year 2015, it was known as the Network of GST which worked as a uniform regime of taxation throughout the country. In the year 2002, the government of Atal Bihari Vajpayee, the Government of India constituted a task force under the guidance of Vijay Kelkar for the recommendations of various tax reforms in India. This task force in the year 2005 recommended to roll out GST as per the suggestion of the twelfth Finance Commission.

When the Government of NDA came in to force in the year 2004 in the Lok Sabha election, P Chidambaram, the new Finance Minister in February 2006 did not discontinue the previous proposal on GST and rolled out the same in the month of April 2010. However, The Trinamool Congress in the year 2011 was expanding its power in West Bengal and the head of GST committee Asim Dasgupta resigned from his post. However, in an interview he stated that almost 80%

In the year 2014, Bharatiya Janata Party in Lok Sabha election came into power. The approved the bill for GST was again introduced by the standing committee as it was lapsed at that time. After the formation of Modi government, the new finance minister Arun Jaitley proposed the GST bill again in the Lok Sabha where majority of members were of BJP. In February 2015, for the implementation of GST finance minister Arun Jaitley provided a deadline till 1 April 2017. The Lok Sabha passed the aforesaid Constitutional Amendment Bill for implementation of GST. However, the congress demanded that the GST Bill must be sent back again to the selection committee for review of the Rajya Sabha as a result of disagreement on the various statements mentioned in the Bill in relation to tax. At last, the Amendment Bill was passed in August 2016. From the next 15-20 days, about 18 states made ratification in the passed amendment bill and thereafter the then President of India Pranab Mukherjee provided his nod for the implementation of GST.
