McCaffrey,2019-02-21 The Law of International Watercourses is an authoritative guide to the rules of international law governing the navigational and non navigational uses of international rivers lakes and groundwater The continued growth of the world s population places increasing demands on Earth s finite supplies of fresh water Because two or more States share many of the world s most important drainage basins including the Danube the Ganges the Indus the Jordan the Mekong the Nile the Rhine and the Tigris Euphrates competition for increasingly scarce fresh water resources will only increase Agreements between the States sharing international watercourses are negotiated and disputes over shared water are resolved against the backdrop of the rules of international law governing the use of this precious resource The basic legal rules governing the use of shared freshwater for purposes other than navigation are reflected in the 1997 UN Convention on the Law of the Non Navigational Uses of International Watercourses This book devotes a chapter to the 1997 Convention but also examines the factual and legal context in which the Convention should be understood considers the more important rules of the Convention in some depth and discusses specific issues that could not be addressed in a framework instrument of that kind The book reviews the major cases and controversies concerning international watercourses as a background against which to consider the basic substantive and procedural rights and obligations of States in the field The third edition covers the implications of the 1997 Convention coming into force in August 2014 and the compatibility of the 1997 and 1992 Conventions This edition also updates the entire book adds new material to many of the chapters and adds a number of new case studies including Pulp Mills on the River Uruguay Argentina v Uruguay and Certain Activities carried out by Nicaragua in the Border Area Costa Rica v Nicaragua amongst others

Remote Sensing Land Surface Changes

Felix Kogan, 2023-02-22 This book discusses the detrimental consequences of climate related land changes over a 40 year period between 1981 and 2020 and focuses on how climate warming is deteriorating the agricultural system due to excessive heat lack of moisture and more intensive and widespread droughts leading to a reduction of agricultural production Most of the existing literature on the unfavourable consequences of global warming for land are based on a relatively short period of weather station data covering local land areas with limited networks and monitoring parameters These concerns have led to the use of satellite data whose measurements are controlled by such vegetation characteristics as chlorophyll carotenoids moisture contents in the plants and temperature inside the vegetation community Therefore the discussion of this book is completely based on high resolution global land surface measurements by the sensors on the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's NOAA operational afternoon polar orbiting satellites The book also focuses on understanding climate change impacts on land changes where humans are living and combines biophysically grounded methods and the 40 year data to develop models for monitoring large scale Earth warming impacts on land and for timely prediction of climate consequences for humans These 40 year trends in land characteristics will help to better inform the assessment of potential changes in the future and how to reach human sustainability The book will of interest to scientists using satellite remote sensing to track climate change impacts on land over time as well as students and researchers in climatology and environmental sustainability
