Digitalization of Healthcare Ian P. McLoughlin, Karin Garrety, Rob Wilson, 2017-01-19 Electronic health records are widely regarded as the connective tissue of any modern healthcare system For some they represent a dangerous enthusiasm and for others a key enabler of disruptive innovation Many governments have made major policy and financial investments in digitalizing health records but their implementation has frequently run into opposition from doctors had lukewarm responses from patients and raised considerable concerns for privacy advocates and others worried by the security of sensitive health data and the risks of national data bases This book draws upon the concept of orders of worth to reveal the moral dimensions of the medical division of labour and to delve deeper into understanding why electronic records have been so difficult to implement and the sources of opposition to them The authors argue that digitalization disrupts the moral orders which define rights and responsibilities for the sharing and exchanging of patient medical data This is illustrated through longitudinal studies of two of the most controversial attempts to introduce national systems a patient controlled electronic record in Australia and a national summary care record that was part of the ill fated NHS national program for IT in England The authors conclude by using the lessons from these national experiences and insights from two regional projects in each country to suggest how the idea of electronic records might be re thought It is a must read for anyone concerned about health information and the implications of how it is shared and exchanged in a digital world Knowledge in Policy Richard Freeman, Steve Sturdy, 2015-10-07 This important collection presents a radical reconception of the place of knowledge in contemporary policymaking in Europe based not on assumptions about evidence expertise or experience but on the different forms that knowledge takes Knowledge is embodied in people inscribed in documents and instruments and enacted in specific circumstances Empirical case studies of health and education policy in different national and international contexts demonstrate the essential interdependence of different forms and phases of knowledge They illustrate the ways in which knowledge is mobilised and resisted and draw attention to key problems in the processing and transformation of knowledge in policy work This novel theoretical framework offers real benefits for policymakers academics in public policy public administration management studies sociology education public health and social work and those with a practical interest in education and health and related fields of public policy International Online Information Meeting ,2005 Local Strategic Partnerships Hilary Russell, 2001 This practical report draws on the experiences of New Commitment to Regeneration NCR pathfinders which have been an influential model for LSPs to identify lessons for good practice Amply illustrated by case studies the report demonstrates what works in effective strategic partnerships and highlights implications for partner organisations and the role of government It locates current developments in the context of evolving urban policy identifies critical success factors for strategic partnerships discusses the dimensions of whole systems change necessary for partnership working indicates key challenges and tasks for LSPs and their partners points to the need to redefine central local relationships vbTab vbTab
