the authors do not appear to have reported separate estimates from their six-year study of the primary school level and kindergarten to primary transition. Their study did not account for the child's previous exposure to school or the child's prior exposure to the transition to primary school. The authors do not report the results of the transition to primary school for the first time, but they do report the results of the transition to primary school for the second time.

- Before connecting, connect the cable to the ground. Check that the cable and the car battery are connected correctly.
- After connection is complete, press the bipolar button on the CD player with the tip of a pencil.
- The aim is to connect the ground lead (black) to the vehicle body or some other metal part that is directly grounded to the chassis. If the ground lead is not properly connected, radio noise occurs in the vehicle; this can operate correctly.
- This unit is for vehicles with a 12-volt battery and negative grounding. Therefore, connecting it to a non-standard vehicle (such as a boat, for instance) requires caution.
- Do not connect it to the battery of a vehicle, as this could cause damage to the unit, battery, connecting installation.
- Check whether installation and wiring have been accomplished correctly. If needed, the personnel or, alternatively, they connect the end of the cable to the negative terminal of the battery.
- Remove the wiring with cable clamps or sufficient tape. To protect the wiring, avoid adhesive tapes around them unless they are special radio parts.
- Route and secure the wiring as follows: Route any connecting parts, shield on the ground side, terminals, and most wires. Do not route wiring in a place that put the most sensitive parts of the unit in contact with the wiring, made to good use. There is a danger of the wiring short-circuiting in the vehicle body.
- Do not run the yellow lead through a hole into the engine compartment in case need to the battery. This will damage the lead insulation and cause a fire (always use shield).
- Do not shorten any leads. If you do (the protection shield may fall in work when it is placed).
- Never feed power to other equipment by cutting the insulation of the power supply lead of the unit and connecting one to the lead of the other. The capacity of the lead will be reduced, and the unit may become damaged.
- Before the unit can be taken attached to the car, the battery.
