Abstract: This paper presents a new approach to the problem of finding the optimal path in a network. The approach is based on the use of a heuristic function to estimate the cost of the path from a given node to the goal. The heuristic function is defined as the minimum cost of any path from the node to the goal. The algorithm is based on the use of a priority queue to store the nodes to be expanded. The node with the lowest estimated cost is expanded first. The algorithm terminates when the goal node is reached. The algorithm is guaranteed to find the optimal path if the heuristic function is admissible. The algorithm is also guaranteed to find the optimal path if the heuristic function is consistent. The algorithm is implemented in a program called Pathfinder. The program is written in C++ and runs on a Windows operating system. The program is available for download from the following URL: <http://www.cba.hawaii.edu/~kyle/pathfinder/>.
