

THEORY OF THE EARTH

The Earth is a sphere of approximately 12,756 km in diameter. It is composed of several layers, including the crust, mantle, and core. The crust is the outermost layer, followed by the mantle, and then the core. The core is further divided into the inner core and the outer core.

The Earth's surface is covered by water and land. The water is primarily in the form of oceans, while the land is composed of continents and islands. The Earth's atmosphere is the layer of gases surrounding the planet.

The Earth's internal structure is determined by its composition and the forces acting upon it. The crust is the outermost layer, followed by the mantle, and then the core. The core is further divided into the inner core and the outer core.
