What We Think About When We Try Not To Think About Global Warming Per Espen Stoknes, 2015 Today about 98 percent of scientists affirm that climate change is human made and about 2 percent still question it Despite that overwhelming majority though about half the population of rich countries like ours choose to believe the 2 percent And paradoxically this large camp of deniers grows even larger as more and more alarming proof of climate change has cropped up over the last decades This disconnect has both climate scientists and activists scratching their heads growing anxious and responding usually by repeating more facts to win the argument But the more climate facts pile up the greater the resistance to them grows and the harder it becomes to enact measures to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and prepare communities for the inevitable change ahead Is humanity up to the task It is a catch 22 that starts says psychologist and climate expert Per Espen Stoknes from an inadequate understanding of the way most humans think act and live in the world around them With dozens of examples he shows how to retell the story of climate change and apply communication strategies more fit for the task Publisher s description Carbon Pricing Larry Kreiser, Mikael Skou Andersen, Birgitte Egelund Olsen, Stefan Speck, Janet E. Regional Risk and Security in Japan Glenn D. Hook, Ra Mason, Paul O'Shea, 2015-05-20 Japan s unusual position in the realm of international politics encapsulates a three fold juxtaposition both in and out of Asia both occupied by and a close ally of the United States and both a key trade partner and a strategic rival of China Whilst international relations theory offers a number of ways to analyse these relations this book instead utilizes the concept of risk to provide an innovative perspective on Japan s relations with China North Korea and the US The book elucidates how risk potential harm and harm are faced disproportionately by certain groups in society This is demonstrated by providing an empirically rich analysis of the domestic implications of security relations with China North Korea and the United States through the presence of US troops in Okinawa Beginning with a theoretical discussion of risk it goes on to demonstrate how the concept of risk adds value to the study of international relations in three senses First the concept helps to break down the boundaries between the international and domestic Second the focus on risk and the everyday directs us to ask basic questions about the costs and benefits of a security policy meant to secure the national population Third what implications do these two points have for governance The question is one of governance as Japan s externally oriented security policy produces domestic insecurity shared disproportionately not equally as this volume makes clear Developing the theory of risk as a tool for understanding international relations this book will be of great interest to students and scholars of Asian politics Japanese politics international relations and security studies as well as to policy makers and practitioners working in the field The physicists who were active in the years following World War II during the middle decades of the 20th century. It covers the strategies they used to survive and thrive in a time where their gender was against them. The percentage of PhDs in physics has risen from 6% in 1983 to 20% in 2012, an all-time high for women. By understanding the history of women in physics, these gains can continue. It discusses the major classes of women physicists: those who worked on military projects and those who worked in industrial laboratories and at universities, largely in the late 1940s and 1950s. While it includes minimal discussion of physics and physicists in the 1960s and later, this book focuses on the challenges and successes of women physicists in the years immediately following World War II and before the eras of affirmative actions and the use of the personal computer.

War Ruth H. Howes,Caroline L. Herzenberg,2015-12-01 This book examines the lives and contributions of American women

Teaching and Digital Technologies Michael Henderson, Geoff Romeo, 2016-01-08. Teaching and Digital Technologies: Big Issues and Critical Questions helps both pre-service and in-service teachers to critically question and evaluate the reasons for using digital technology in the classroom. Unlike other resources that show how to use specific technologies and quickly become outdated, this text empowers the reader to understand why they should or should not use digital technologies when it is appropriate or not and the implications arising from these decisions. The text directly engages with policy, the Australian Curriculum, pedagogy, learning, and wider issues of equity, access, generational stereotypes, and professional learning. The contributors to the book are notable figures from across a broad range of Australian universities, giving the text a unique relevance to Australian education while retaining its universal appeal. Teaching and Digital Technologies is an essential contemporary resource for early childhood, primary and secondary pre-service and in-service teachers in both local and international education environments.

An Assessment of ARPA-E National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Energy and Environmental Systems, Policy and Global Affairs, Board on Science, Technology, and Economic Policy, Committee on Evaluation of the Advanced Research Projects Agency-Energy (ARPA-E), 2017-08-28. In 2005, the National Research Council report Rising Above the Gathering Storm recommended a new way for the federal government to spur technological breakthroughs in the energy sector. It recommended the creation of a new agency, the Advanced Research Projects Agency-Energy or ARPA-E, as an adaptation of the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) model, widely considered a successful experiment that has funded out-of-the-box transformative research and engineering that made possible the Internet, GPS, and stealth aircraft.

This new agency was envisioned as a means of tackling the nation's energy challenges in a way that could translate basic research into technological breakthroughs while also addressing economic environmental and security issues Congress authorized ARPA E in the 2007 America COMPETES Act and requested an early assessment following 6 years of operation to examine the agency's progress toward achieving its statutory mission and goals This report documents the results of that assessment It includes both an operational assessment of the agency's funding programs and a technical assessment of its awards to the extent possible
