Islamic Reform in Twentieth-Century Africa Roman Loimeier, 2016-09-08 The first comprehensive analysis of Muslim movements of reform in modern sub-Saharan Africa. Based on twelve case studies: Senegal, Mali, Nigeria, Niger, Chad, Sudan, Ethiopia, Somalia, Kenya, Tanzania, Zanzibar, and the Comoros, this book looks at patterns and peculiarities of different traditions of Islamic reform. Considering both Sufi and Salafi-oriented movements in their respective historical contexts, it stresses the importance of the local context to explain the different trajectories of development. The book studies the social, religious, and political impact of these reform movements in both historical and contemporary times and asks why some have become successful as popular mass movements while others failed to attract substantial audiences. It also considers jihad-minded movements in contemporary Mali, northern Nigeria, and Somalia and looks at modes of transnational entanglement of movements of reform. Against the background of a general inquiry into what constitutes reform, the text responds to the question of what reform actually means for Muslims in contemporary Africa Key features Biographies of reformist scholars complement the text Case studies are placed in the context of the dynamics of reform in the larger world of Islam Addresses the importance of trans national entanglements and their formative power Focuses on the dynamics of social and religious development the political dynamics of Islamic reform and issues of youth generational change and gender

New Approaches to Islam in Film Kristian Petersen, 2021-04-26 Many global film industries fail in expanding the role of Muslims on screen Too often they produce a dichotomy between good and bad Muslims limiting the narrative domain to issues of national security war and terrorism Naturally much of the previous scholarship on Muslims in film focused on stereotypes and the politics of representation This collection of essays from an international panel of contributors significantly expands the boundaries of discussion around Muslims in film asking new questions of the archive and magnifying analyses of particular cultural productions The volume includes the exploration of regional cinemas detailed analysis of auteurs and individual films comparison across global cinema and new explorations that have not yet entered the conversation The interdisciplinary collection provides an examination of the multiple roles Islam plays in film and the various ways Muslims are depicted Across the chapters key intersecting themes arise that push the limits of how we currently approach issues of Muslims in cinema and ventures to lead us in new directions for future scholarship This book adds new depth to the matrix of previous scholarship by revisiting methodological structures and sources as well as exploring new visual geographies transnational circuits and approaches It reframes the presiding scholarly conventions in five novel trajectories considering new sources exploring new communities probing new perspectives charting new theoretical directions and offering new ways of understanding conflict in cinema As such it will be of great use to scholars working in Islamic Studies Film Studies Religious Studies and Media
