important consequences on the ecological health of rivers Managing rivers in an ecologically friendly way is a major component of sustainable engineering design maintenance and restoration of ecological habitats To address these challenges a major focus of River Flow 2016 was to highlight the latest advances in experimental computational and theoretical approaches that can be used to deepen our understanding and capacity to predict flow and the associated fluid driven ecological processes anthropogenic influences sediment transport and morphodynamic processes River Flow 2016 was organized under the auspices of the Committee for Fluvial Hydraulics of the International Association for Hydro Environment Engineering and Research IAHR Since its first edition in 2002 the River Flow conference series has become the main international event focusing on river hydrodynamics sediment transport river engineering and restoration Some of the highlights of the 8th International Conference on Fluvial Hydraulics were to focus on inter disciplinary research involving among others ecological and biological aspects relevant to river flows and processes and to emphasize broader themes dealing with river sustainability River Flow 2016 extended abstract book 854 pages full paper CD ROM 2436 pages contains the contributions presented during the regular sessions covering the main conference themes and the special sessions focusing on specific hot topics of river flow research and will be of interest to academics interested in hydraulics hydrology and environmental engineering Proceedings of the First Southern African Geotechnical Conference S.W.

The State of the Art in Student Engagement Carl

Senior, 2015-07-10 There is an extensive literature conducted from a range of theoretical perspectives and methodologies on the role of groups and student learning in higher education However here the concept of the group is heavily contested at a theoretical level but within higher education practice characterizing the group has tended to be clear cut Groups of students are often formed within the parameters of specific educational programs to address explicitly defined learning objectives These groups are often small scale and achieve tasks through cooperative or collaborative learning Cooperative learning involves students dividing roles and responsibilities between group members so learning becomes an independent process and outcome On the other hand collaborative learning involves students working together by developing shared meanings and knowledge to solve a task or problem From this perspective learning is conceptualized as both a social process and individual outcome That is collaborative learning may facilitate individual student conceptual understanding and hence lead to higher academic achievement The empirical evidence is encouraging as has been shown that students working collaboratively tend to achieve higher grades than students working independently However the above perspectives on student engagement assume that groups are formed within the confines of formal learning environments e g lecture theaters involve students on the same degree program have the explicit function of achieving a learning task and disband once this has been achieved However students may also use existing social networks such as friendship groups as a mechanism for learning which may occur outside of formal learning environments There is an extensive literature on the role and benefits of friendship groups on student learning within primary and secondary education but there is a distinct lack of research within higher education This ebook is innovative and ambitious and will highlight and consolidate the current understanding of the role that student based engagement behaviors may serve in effective pedagogy A unique aspect of this research topic will be the fact that scholars will also be welcome to submit articles that describe the efficacy of the full range of approaches that have been employed to facilitate student engagement across the sector Come Fly with Us Melvin Croft, John
