

Macroeconomics practice exam questions:

Question 1:

- A) Briefly define potential output, short-run output and recession.

Potential output: The amount of output that an economy can produce when using its resources at normal rates. It means the long run stable output.

Short-run output: this is the percentage deviation of actual output from potential output. It is typically called the output gap.

Recession: A business cycle contractions. It is a general slowdown in economic activity. The definition states that a recession is a consecutive two quarters of decreasing real GDP.

- B) How does the concept of hysteresis (persistent effect on output in a recession) in the business cycle differ from the way the business cycle was analysed in the lectures? Can you think of some explanations for such hysteresis. Discuss. (6 points)
- In lectures there was a clear distinction between the long-run and short-run business cycles. There was a focus on the short-term business cycle which took potential output as a given. The latter was determined by factors in the first-half of the course, where we studied economic growth. In this setup recessions are temporary declines in aggregate demand, when actual output falls below potential output, followed by a recovery period where output returns to potential
  - When recessions have highly persistent effects on output.
    - Generate hysteresis.
    - There is no clear separation between short-run and long-run
    - It is incorrect to take potential output as given in this situation.
  - Reasons for hysteresis:
    - Recession reduces capital accumulation.
    - Scars workers who lose their jobs.
    - Disrupts economic activity that promote technological progress.
  - Ball finds that recessions have negative effects on countries productive capacity, measured by the OECD and IMF estimates of potential output.
    - Are hysteresis effects reversible?

Question 2:

Is there anything unusual?

- Shows two monetary aggregates.
