Supporting Time-Critical, Parallel, and Spatially Distributed Tasks Using Augmented Reality

Jannike Illing, 2025-05-15 Even in highly automated production environments some tasks such as bonding and assembly still rely on human adaptability. These tasks are often time critical, run in parallel, and are spatially distributed across multiple workstations. How can Augmented Reality (AR) help reduce complexity and support workers in managing these demanding processes? In this dissertation, manual manufacturing using bonding as a representative case is investigated, and it is explored how AR can assist in the execution of complex, parallel, and time-critical tasks. Following a Human-Centered Design (HCD) approach, the research is grounded in observations and expert interviews, leading to three central research questions: How can time-critical, parallel tasks be visualized within the field of view (FoV)? How can they be guided outside the FoV? How can users gain an overview of distributed tasks? Findings show that AR reduces task complexity, improves performance, and is preferred over traditional instructions. However, supporting more than two concurrent tasks increases cognitive load. For spatially distributed tasks, location-based AR cues alone are not sufficient; additional peripheral visual signals and spatially registered overviews are essential for effective support.

WHO compendium of innovative health technologies for low-resource settings 2024 World Health Organization, 2024-07-18 Access to appropriate, affordable, effective, and safe health technologies is paramount, especially in low-resource settings where the burden of non-communicable diseases adds on to the infectious diseases. NCDs account for a staggering 74% of global deaths, with 86% of premature fatalities occurring in resource-constrained regions. Cardiovascular diseases, cancers, chronic respiratory conditions, and diabetes collectively contribute to over 80% of these premature NCD-related deaths. Addressing this challenge requires targeted interventions and innovative solutions tailored to LMICs. The 2024 Compendium of Innovative Health Technologies for low-resource settings includes commercially available solutions and prototypes. This 7th edition showcases 21 technologies, each with a full assessment. It also includes updates for technologies previously featured in previous compendia editions. Assessments include clinical aspects, relation to WHO technical specifications, regulatory compliance, criteria on health technology assessment, and health technology management, local production viability, and intellectual property considerations. Beyond presenting these innovations, the Compendium serves as a catalyst for increased interaction among stakeholders: ministries of health, procurement officers, donors, developers, biomedical engineers, clinicians, and users. By providing evidence-based assessments and relevant information, it aims to drive use of innovative health technology and expand global access, particularly for low-resource settings for populations in need.
