ECU SELF-DIAGNOSTIC FUNCTION

The ECU is equipped with a self-diagnostic function in order to ensure that the fuel injection system is operating normally. If this function detects a malfunction in the system, it immediately operates the engine under substitute characteristics and illuminates the engine trouble warning light to alert the rider that a malfunction has occurred in the system. Once a malfunction has been detected, a fault code is stored in the memory of the ECU.

- To inform the rider that the fuel injection system is not functioning, the engine trouble warning light comes on or flashes when the start switch is being pushed to start the engine.
- If a malfunction is detected in the system by the self-diagnostic function, the ECU provides an appropriate substitute characteristic operation, and alerts the rider of the detected malfunction by illuminating the engine trouble warning light.
- After the engine has been stopped, the lowest fault code number appears on the multi-function meter display. Once a fault code has been displayed, it remains stored in the memory of the ECU until it is deleted.

1. Engine trouble warning light

Engine trouble warning light indication and fuel injection system operation

Warning light indication	ECU operation	FI operation	Vehicle operation
Flashing*	Warning provided when unable to start engine	Operation stopped	Cannot be operated
Remains on	Malfunction detected	Operated with substitute characteristics in accordance with the description of the malfunction	Can or cannot be operated depending on the fault code

* The warning light flashes when any one of the conditions listed below is present and the start switch "ON" is pushed:

12:	Crankshaft position sensor	39:	Fuel injector (open or short-circuit)
30:	Lean angle sensor (latch up detected)	41:	Lean angle sensor (open or short-circuit)
33:	Faulty ignition	50:	ECU internal malfunction (faulty ECU memory)

Checking for a defective engine trouble warning light bulb

The engine trouble warning light comes on for around 2 seconds after the main switch has been turned to "ON" (on). If the warning light does not come on under these conditions, the warning light (LED) may be defective.

ECU detects an abnormal signal from a sensor

If the ECU detects an abnormal signal from a sensor while the vehicle is being driven, the ECU illuminates the engine trouble warning light and provides the engine with alternate operating instructions that are appropriate for the type of malfunction.
