Concepts:

- Chemical bonding
- Covalent bonding
- Ionic bonding
- Metallic bonding
- Intermolecular bonding
- Physical & chemical properties
- Electronegativity

Introduction

- Types of atoms are not equal in chemical bond: electronegativity
- In order to understand bond of atoms/molecules we need to know how they are held together, energy
- In order to know a bond between two atoms, energy must be added to separate the atoms

Electronegativity

- Electronegativity: tendency of an atom to attract electrons towards itself in a covalent compound
- More electronegative atom is more likely to attract electrons in a bond, making it more negative charge
- Electronegativity increases with the strength of a bond
- From electronegativity values, we can predict the type of bond: ionic bond

Covalent bonding

Two atoms share their valence electrons, resulting from bond of electrons from one atom to another atom.

Molecule is a group of atoms held together by covalent bonds.

Electronegativity is the ability of an atom to attract electrons towards itself in a covalent bond. It is a measure of the relative ability of an atom to attract electrons.

Electronegativity is a measure of the ability of an atom to attract electrons towards itself in a covalent bond. It is a measure of the relative ability of an atom to attract electrons.

Teaching Chemistry - A Studybook Ingo Eilks, Avi Hofstein, 2013-04-20 This book focuses on developing and updating prospective and practicing chemistry teachers pedagogical content knowledge The 11 chapters of the book discuss the most essential theories from general and science education and in the second part of each of the chapters apply the theory to examples from the chemistry classroom Key sentences tasks for self assessment and suggestions for further reading are also included The book is focused on many different issues a teacher of chemistry is concerned with The chapters provide contemporary discussions of the chemistry curriculum objectives and assessment motivation learning difficulties linguistic issues practical work student active pedagogies ICT informal learning continuous professional development and teaching chemistry in developing environments This book with contributions from many of the world's top experts in chemistry education is a major publication offering something that has not previously been available Within this single volume chemistry teachers teacher educators and prospective teachers will find information and advice relating to key issues in teaching such as the curriculum assessment and so forth but contextualised in terms of the specifics of teaching and learning of chemistry and drawing upon the extensive research in the field Moreover the book is written in a scholarly style with extensive citations to the literature thus providing an excellent starting point for teachers and research students undertaking scholarly studies in chemistry education whilst at the same time offering insight and practical advice to support the planning of effective chemistry teaching This book should be considered essential reading for those preparing for chemistry teaching and will be an important addition to the libraries of all concerned with chemical education Dr Keith S Taber University of Cambridge Editor Chemistry Education Research and Practice The highly regarded collection of authors in this book fills a critical void by providing an essential resource for teachers of chemistry to enhance pedagogical content knowledge for teaching modern chemistry Through clever orchestration of examples and theory and with carefully framed guiding questions the book equips teachers to act on the relevance of essential chemistry knowledge to navigate such challenges as context motivation to learn thinking activity language assessment and maintaining professional expertise If you are a secondary or post secondary teacher of chemistry this book will quickly become a favorite well thumbed resource Professor Hannah Sevan University of Massachusetts Boston

Qualitative Chemical Analysis Albert Benjamin Prescott, Otis Coe Johnson, 1901

Resources in Education, 1996 Qualitative Chemical Analysis A. B. Prescott, 1916 Journal of Chemical Education, 1925 Includes Report of New England Association of Chemistry Teachers and Proceedings of the Pacific Southwest Association of Chemistry Teachers Coteaching chemical bonding with Upper secondary senior students Felix Schultze, 2018-11-21 The aim of this study was to investigate how an experienced chemistry teacher gains and refines her pedagogical content knowledge PCK by cooperating with two grade 12 students age 18 as coteachers while teaching chemical bonding in a grade 10 Upper secondary class The study has been conducted from a sociocultural perspective

especially Vygotsky's zone of proximal development ZPD Vygotsky 1978 Other theoretical concepts and models that have framed this study are Shulman's Pedagogical content knowledge PCK and Pedagogical reasoning and action model Shulman 1986 1987 When analysing the data Magnusson Krajcik and Borko's 1999 model of PCK and the 2017 Refined consensus model of PCK Carlson Daehler et al in press was used Empirical data was collected by video and audio recorded lessons coreflection sessions coplanning sessions and interviews During 10 weeks about 28 hours of video and audio recordings was collected Selected parts of the material were transcribed and analysed in order to answer two questions 1 How can chemistry teachers refine their PCK when coteaching together with senior students in an Upper secondary science class 2 How do Upper secondary senior student coteachers conceptual knowledge of representations and chemical bonding shape a teacher's foundation of personal PCK pPCK when teaching chemical bonding in an Upper secondary science class The results relating to research question one indicates that the coteachers contributed with their own learning experiences to help the teacher understand how students perceive difficult concepts The coteachers were mediating between the teacher and the students thus bridging the gap between the teacher and the students frames of references The experienced chemistry teacher improved her understanding of students thinking about themselves as learners of chemical bonding Regarding the second research question the findings showed that the creative process of reconstructing concepts of chemical bonding in the coplanning sessions meant that these were a useful tool for developing new teaching strategies and to further develop representations such as drama to illustrate chemical bonding Together the teacher and student coteachers constructed a new representation that better illustrated polar covalent bonding Taken together these results provide important insights into how the chemistry teacher's pPCK was refined and how the coteachers contributed to improve instructional strategies

Science Education at the Nexus of Theory and Practice, 2008-01-01 This book is a compilation of papers from the inaugural International Science Education Conference held at the National Institute of Education Singapore The title Science Education at the Nexus of Theory and Practice reflects a pressing yet ongoing concern worldwide to integrate theory and practice in science education and the reader will find something of interest to both science education practitioners and researchers The editors have decided to engage in written dialogue before each of the three sections to enrich the experience Divided into three key sections A Concepts conceptual change and science learning B science teacher development and learning and C access to science accessible science the 19 chapters will engender food for thought and in all likelihood transform classroom practices All the contributors here provide important insights into the diverse education systems cultural backgrounds and societal norms through which science education can be realized Teaching High School Science Alexander Joseph, 1961 Teaching Chemistry Around the World Björn Risch, 2010 As teachers we often tend to expect other countries to teach chemistry in much the same way as we do but educational systems differ widely At Bielefeld University we started a project to analyse the approach to chemical education in different countries from all over the world

Teaching Chemistry around the World 25 countries have participated in the project The resulting country studies are presented in this book This book may be seen as a contribution to make the structure of chemistry teaching in numerous countries more transparent and to facilitate communication between these countries Especially in the case of the school subject chemistry which is very unpopular on the one hand and occupies an exceptional position on the other hand due to its relevance to jobs and everyday life and most notably due to its importance for innovation capacity and problem solving we have to learn from each others educational systems      Industrial & Engineering Chemistry ,1923
