Earning and Learning Susan E. Mayer, Paul E. Peterson, 2010-12-01 A Brookings Institution Press and Russell Sage Foundation publication Education is one of the largest sectors of the U S economy yet scholars educators policymakers and parents do not agree about what the money spent on education really buys In particular they do not agree on how much education improves children s ability to learn or whether the things children learn in school truly improve their chances for success as adults If schooling increases how much students know and what they know does pay off later then it is important to ask what schools can do to increase students learning and earning The essays in this book report estimates of the effects of learning on earnings and other life outcomes They also examine whether particular aspects of schooling such as the age at which children begin school classroom size and curriculum or structural reform such as national or statewide examinations or school choice affect learning Taken together their findings suggest that liberals are correct in saying that more investment is needed in early education that class sizes should be further reduced and that challenging national or state standards should be established But they also provide support for conservatives who ask for a more demanding curriculum and greater school choice Contributors include John Bishop Eric Hanushek James Heckman Christopher Jencks Caroline Minter Hoxby Fred Mosteller and Christopher Winship

Kill the Messenger Richard Phelps, 2017-09-04 In response to public demand federal legislation now requires testing of most students in the United States in reading and mathematics in grades three through eight Many educators parents and policymakers who have paid little attention to testing policy issues in the past need to have better information on the topic than has generally been available Kill the Messenger now in paperback fills this gap This is perhaps the most thorough and authoritative work in defense of educational testing ever written Phelps points out that much research conducted by education insiders on the topic is based on ideological preference or profound self interest It is not surprising that they arrive at emphatically anti testing conclusions Much if not most of this hostile research is passed on to the public by journalists as if it were neutral objective and independent Kill the Messenger explains and refutes many of
