

CONCEPT OF THE DAY :- ELECTRICAL ENGG BY ASHUTOSH

Q.Which of the following is usually not the generating voltage ?

- (A) 6.6 kV
- (B) 9.9 kV
- (C) 11kV
- (D) 13.2 kV

Ans:- (D) 13.2 kV

CONCEPT :-

- ❑ the choice of generation voltage will always depend on the dominant standard that is being adopted by a particular country or region. For Europe, 11 kV and 50 Hz is the dominant standard generator voltage and frequency,.
- ❑ for North America, 13.8 kV and 60 Hz is the dominant standard generator voltage and frequency. But large generator manufacturers can design and build a wide range of generator voltage (11 kV to 28 kV) and standard frequency (50 Hz or 60 Hz), based on existing generator design, construction and insulation technology.
- ❑ It is cheaper to generate at a relative lower voltage and then step it up for transmission. Hence, most power generating plants are designed to operate at 11KV. To generate at 33KV, the size of the motor might be twice as large as the size of 11KV generator. So it is better to have a multi stage step up for Transmission if needed.
