Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group did not participate in any exercise program. The physical fitness of the subjects was measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week program. The results of the study showed that the walking program had a significant effect on the physical fitness of the subjects. The subjects in the walking program showed significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, muscular strength, and body composition compared to the control group. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program can improve the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women.
