Translation Alamin M. Mazrui, 2016-02-19 This book is the first full length examination of the cultural politics at work in the act of translation in East Africa providing close critical analyses of a variety of texts that demonstrate the myriad connections between translation and larger socio political forces Looking specifically at texts translated into Swahili the book builds on the notion that translation is not just a linguistic process but also a complex interaction between culture history and politics and charts this evolution of the translation process in East Africa from the pre colonial to colonial to post colonial periods It uses textual examples including the Bible the Qur'an and Frantz Fanon's Wretched of the Earth from five different domains religious political legal journalistic and literary and grounds them in their specific socio political and historical contexts to highlight the importance of context in the translation process and to unpack the complex relationships between both global and local forces that infuse these translated texts with an identity all their own This book provides a comprehensive portrait of the multivalent nature of the act of translation in the East African experience and serves as a key resource for students and researchers in translation studies cultural studies post colonial studies African studies and comparative literature

Ethnicity, Commodity, In/Corporation George Paul Meiu, Jean Comaroff, John L. Comaroff, 2020-08-04 In the economics of everyday life even ethnicity has become a potential resource to be tapped generating new sources of profit and power new ways of being social and new visions of the future Throughout Africa ethnic corporations have been repurposed to do business in mining or tourism in the USA Native American groupings have expanded their involvement in gaming design and other industries and all over the world the commodification of culture has sown itself deeply into the domains of everything from medicine to fashion Ethnic groups increasingly seek empowerment by formally incorporating themselves by deploying their sovereign status for material ends and by copyrighting their cultural practices as intellectual property Building on ethnographic case studies from Kenya Nepal Peru Russia and many other countries this collection poses the question Does the turn to the incorporation and commodification of ethnicity really herald a new historical moment in the global politics of identity
