Physical Science Paper One 2014 June Paper For Gauteng

Franco Giuseppe Dal Bianco

Physical Science Paper One 2014 June Paper For Gauteng:

The Changing Space Economy of City-Regions Koech Cheruiyot, 2017-10-30 This book addresses the South African Space Economy and its stark disparities and dualisms through an assessment of the Gauteng City Region the largest economic agglomeration in the country and on a continent bedevilled by a myriad of development challenges The book's focus on understanding the overall character of Gauteng City Region's Space Economy through data mining analysis and mapping comprehensively supplements the Space Economy literature on the region It covers the disparities exacerbated by an overlay of apartheid planning ideology and top down regional development based on selective encouragement of manufacturing investments in growth points or poles and how implementation of past policies intended to cure these disparities have yielded mixed results This book further offers the Gauteng City Region as a microcosm of the national economy in the form of evident significant place based variations in the intensity and character of economic structure that on the one hand enjoys massive agglomeration economies while on the other has high levels of poverty and large numbers of people living below the Minimum Living Level This book should appeal to urban studies specialists economists and development studies researchers in the Global South

Towards more effective collaboration by higher education institutions for greater regional development in the Gauteng City-Region Robert Bergman, 2014-11-19 Higher education institutions HEIs in the Gauteng City Region GCR and elsewhere are increasingly being called upon to do more than their traditional roles of teaching and research They are now expected to collaborate and engage with other stakeholders with a view to contributing directly and indirectly to social and economic development in their localities Such an orientation includes having HEIs actively fostering public private partnerships and other initiatives that enhance equitable regional development The adoption of such a focus has implications for all aspects of these institutions' activities as well as for the policy and regulatory framework in which they operate This Occasional Paper reflects critically on the role of HEIs in regional development It surveys current debates on the matter and draws out some of the implications on how we ought to think further about the current state of government industry-academia interaction and collaboration for development in the GCR It is motivated by an awareness of the increasing importance of higher education in the regional development discourse alongside a body of international theory and practice on the contribution of HEIs to regional development A cornerstone of this body of literature is the so called triple helix framework within which government industry and academia work intimately intensely and collaboratively towards a common vision of regional development Within this framework HEIs are considered to be a public good that must play a large meaningful and relevant role in the development and improvement of the cities and regions where they are located 1 2 They do not and cannot stand completely outside the realities of their geographic social cultural and political environment The intended audience for this report extends beyond academics and HEI administrators to include government officials business and labour leaders civil society and citizens because a discussion on stimulating and improving the GCR must be much more than an academic exercise The collaboration that is essential to regional development requires stakeholders to be familiar with a wide spectrum of issues of importance to individual constituencies Each constituency must add value and insight to the discussion by drawing on their specific knowledge experience and self interests Establishing this common ground is fundamental to initiating meaningful debate about what the GCR can and should be and how regional HEIs can work more collaboratively creatively and effectively to improve and advance the region
