No Easy Answers Allan Franklin, 2005-02-27 In No Easy Answers Allan Franklin offers an accurate picture of science to both a general reader and to scholars in the humanities and social sciences who may not have any background in physics Through the examination of nontechnical case studies he illustrates the various roles that experiment plays in science He uses examples of unquestioned success such as the discoveries of the electron and of three types of neutrino as well as studies that were dead ends wrong turns or just plain mistakes such as the fifth force a proposed modification of Newton's law of gravity Franklin argues that science is a reasonable enterprise that provides us with knowledge of the natural world based on valid experimental evidence and reasoned and critical discussion and he makes clear that it behooves all of us to understand how it works

Physics for the Inquiring Mind Eric M. Rogers, 2011-04-17 In our scientific age an understanding of physics is part of a liberal education Lawyers bankers governors business heads administrators all wise educated people need a lasting understanding of physics so that they can enjoy those contacts with science and scientists that are part of our civilization both materially and intellectually They need knowledge and understanding instead of the feelings all too common that physics is dark and mysterious and that physicists are a strange people with incomprehensible interests Such a sense of understanding science and scientists can be gained neither from sermons on the beauty of science nor from the rigorous courses that colleges have offered for generations when the headache clears away it leaves little but a confused sense of mystery Nor is the need met by survey courses that offer a smorgasbord of tidbits they give science a bad name as a compendium of information or formulas The non scientist needs a course of study that enables him to learn real science and make its own with delight For lasting benefits the intelligent non scientist needs a course of study that enables him to learn genuine science carefully and then encourages him to think about it and use it He needs a carefully selected framework of topics not so many that learning becomes superficial and hurried not so few that he misses the connected nature of scientific work and thinking He must see how scientific knowledge is built up by building some scientific knowledge of his own by reading and discussing and if possible by doing experiments himself He must think his own way through some scientific arguments He must form his own opinion with guidance concerning the parts played by experiment and theory and he must be shown how to develop a taste for good theory He must see several varieties of scientific method at work And above all he must think about science for himself and enjoy that These are the things that this
