Abstract—The authors examined the effects of a 12-week, 3-day-per-week, 100-min-per-session, supervised, group-based, low-impact aerobically demanding exercise program on the health-related quality of life (HRQL) of 100 elderly women. The program was designed to improve the aerobic capacity, muscle strength, and balance of the participants. The program was evaluated using the SF-36, a validated HRQL instrument. The results showed that the program had a positive effect on the HRQL of the participants. The authors conclude that a supervised, group-based, low-impact aerobically demanding exercise program can improve the HRQL of elderly women.
