Islam, Gender, and Democracy in Comparative Perspective Jocelyne Cesari, José Casanova, 2017-04-14 The relationship between secularism democracy religion and gender equality has been a complex one across Western democracies and still remains contested When we turn to Muslim countries the situation is even more multifaceted In the views of many western commentators the question of Women Rights is the litmus test for Muslim societies in the age of democracy and liberalism Especially since the Arab Awakening the issue is usually framed as the opposition between liberal advocates of secular democracy and religious opponents of women s full equality Islam Gender and Democracy in Comparative Perspective critically re engages this too simple binary opposition by reframing the debate around Islam and women s rights within a broader comparative literature Bringing together leading scholars from a range of disciplines it examines the complex and contingent historical relationships between religion secularism democracy law and gender equality Part One addresses the nexus of religion law gender and democracy through different disciplinary perspectives sociology anthropology political science law Part Two localizes the implementation of this nexus between law gender and democracy and provides contextualized responses to questions raised in Part One The contributors explore the situation of Muslim women s rights in minority conditions to shed light on the gender politics in the modernization of the nation and to ponder on the role of Islam in gender inequality across different Muslim countries

Changing Narratives Around

Humanitarian Protection and Gender-Based Violence: An Artistic Journey Jeremy Allouche, 2024-03-20 Art is enjoying a resurgence among researchers, activists and practitioners as a powerful medium to challenge conventional narratives around humanitarian protection and give access to a broader range of perspectives. As part of a research project focusing on the territories of North and South Kivu in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, artists and researchers came together to discuss their understandings of the notions of humanitarian and civilian protection and gender-based violence. This book presents the artists' unique contributions to this discussion in the form of photography, theatre, dance, music, painting, writing and slam poetry in combination with some of the research findings. It provides an alternative perspective on the experience of protection issues from the point of view of the arts, the social sciences and the humanities. L'art connaît un regain d'intérêt parmi les chercheurs, les activistes et les praticiens en tant que moyen puissant de remettre en question les discours conventionnels sur la protection humanitaire et de donner accès à un plus large éventail de perspectives. Dans le cadre d'un projet de recherche portant sur les territoires du Nord et du Sud Kivu en République démocratique du Congo, artistes et chercheurs se sont réunis pour partager leurs compréhensions des notions de protection humanitaire et civile et de violences basées sur le genre. Ce livre présente les contributions uniques des artistes à cette discussion sous forme de photographie, de pièce de théâtre, de danse, de musique, de peinture, d'écriture et de poésie slam, ainsi que les résultats de la recherche. Il propose une perspective alternative sur l'expérience des questions de protection d'un point de vue artistique et des sciences sociales et humaines.

The Republic Unsettled Mayanthi L. Fernando, 2014-09-19 In 1989 three Muslim schoolgirls from a Paris suburb refused to remove their Islamic headscarves in class The headscarf crisis signaled an Islamic revival among the children of North African immigrants it also ignited an ongoing debate about the place of Muslims within the secular nation state Based on ten years of ethnographic research The Republic Unsettled alternates between an analysis of Muslim French religiosity and the contradictions of French secularism that this emergent religiosity precipitated Mayanthi L. Fernando explores how Muslim French draw on both Islamic and secular republican traditions to create novel modes of ethical and political life reconfiguring those traditions to imagine a new future for France She also examines how the political discourses institutions and laws that constitute French secularism regulate Islam transforming the Islamic tradition and what it means to be Muslim Fernando traces how long standing tensions within secularism and republican citizenship are displaced onto France's Muslims who as a result are rendered illegitimate as political citizens and moral subjects She argues ultimately that the Muslim question is as much about secularism as it is about Islam
